TORONTO (CP) — Inspector of Detectives M. Mulholland today said 61 gasoline ration books and 1,134 loose gasoline coupons had been stolen from cars, trucks and service stations in the last month. "The operations of the black market in gasoline ration coupons in this city are getting serious," he said.

Survivors Landed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medium-sized U.S. merchant vessel was torpedoed and sunk in mid-March in the north Atlantic, and survivors have been landed at New York City, the navy announced today.

Northwest Parley

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A joint meeting May 5 in Seattle of the Pacific Northwest Regional Planning Commission and the Washington State Planning Council was announced today by Pat Hetherington, executive officer of the council. Purpose of the conferences will be to learn of progress in the North Pacific study, a planning project covering British Columbia, Yukon Territory, Alaska and the Pacific Northwest.

Accept Boeing Planes

VANCOUVER (CP) — Air Commodore A. L. Johnson, director of aeronautical inspection for the R.C.A.F., in a statement today said a charge made by strike leaders that 54 PBV aircraft built by Boeings had been rejected "is refuted." The Air Commodore said that of the 55 Catalinas the R.C.A.F. had accepted 40, of which 34 are already in service. The balance of the 55 on order for the R.C.A.F. are not as yet ready for final inspection and acceptance, he said.

Honors at Funeral

NANAIMO (CP) — Full military funeral honors were planned today for Capt. Ralph Campbell Jessup, 45, Macleod, Alta., and Lt. Richard Alston Scott, 22, Melville, Sask., killed early Sunday when their army vehicle plunged off a bridge near Ladysmith, just south of here.

Saskatchewan Seeding

REGINA (CP) — Shortage of farm helpers on Saskatchewan farms for spring seeding has been reduced from 6,000 to 2,000 during the past three weeks, it was disclosed today, and seeding is now under way throughout the province.

Russ Artillery Hits Nazi Lines In Kuban Sector

MOSCOW (AP) — Red Army artillery raked German positions in the Kuban sector of the western Caucasus throughout Sunday night although the Soviet mid-night communique announced that German efforts to expand their bridgehead in that region had been abandoned after a six-day drive in which the Nazis lost 7,000 men.

The mid-day communique said the Russian shellfire killed 200 more of the enemy, and that 16 mortar and artillery batteries were silenced and 10 German blockhouses were destroyed.

(The German high command communique, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, claimed the Russians had failed Sunday in fresh attacks on the Kuban bridgehead. Several planes raided East Prussia Sunday night and one was shot down, the bulletin said. It did not report the nationality of the raiders, but Red Army bombers have ranged across east Prussia on several forays this year.)

Violent Air Fight

A violent spring air struggle continued along the entire front as Soviet bombers and fighters sought to disrupt any German plans for an offensive.

A skirmish was reported on the northwestern front, where Soviet troops were said to have thrown back numerically superior forces, otherwise little action was reported in the communique.

On the home front, the Communist Party newspaper Pravda discussed the possibility of a second front in Europe, and said "the Hitlerite command fears active operations of our Allies on the European continent as it would fear fire."

Vice-Regal Visitors Here Briefly Today

His Excellency the Governor-General, the Earl of Athlone and Her Royal Highness Princess Alice passed through Victoria this afternoon en route from Vancouver to Seattle. They remained in their suite aboard the steamer for an hour in Victoria harbor. A. M. D. Fairbairn, private secretary at Government House, called on them to receive final approval for their official Victoria program.

After two days in Seattle the vice-regal visitors will proceed to Portland and will return here next Sunday, to remain at Government House until Wednesday, May 12, when they will return to Vancouver.

During their brief visit to Victoria His Excellency and H.R.H. will visit units of the navy, army and air force, of which the Governor-General is commander-in-chief.

Halifax Still Leads Victoria In Loan Contest

Citizens of Greater Victoria must make a better showing in the Fourth Victory Loan than they did in the first week of the campaign if they are to preserve civic pride and beat Greater Halifax in the inter-community contest. Figures from the Pacific and Maritimes centres on this morning's subscriptions showed Halifax still ahead although the margin was slightly reduced. The totals were:

Greater Halifax, $2,068,450; Greater Victoria, $1,932,850.

Of the four communities comprising Greater Victoria, only Oak Bay fell behind its subscriptions for a comparable period of the Third Victory Loan of last October, the whole of Greater Victoria being $110,000 in advance.

Results of municipal units to date follow, figures in brackets being the totals to the same stage of the Third Victory Loan, 1942: Victoria City, $1,218,900 ($1,204,400); Saanich $262,300 ($254,600); Oak Bay, $344,900 ($348,700); Esquimalt, $106,750 ($98,450).

All figures are for the general canvass of private citizens, corporations and wealthy individuals being listed separately.

Sailor Dog and Young Mistress Happy Again

Posh, survivor of H.M.C.S. Weyburn, and Pamela Golby, daughter of Lt.-Cmdr. T. W. Golby, who gave his life when the Weyburn sank in the Mediterranean, are playmates once more at Ten Mile Point. (For story see Page 2).

Nazis Withdraw in Tunisia

Allies Capture Mateur, Drive Towards Bizerte

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NORTH AFRICA (AP) —

United States troops have entered Mateur, key junction of rail and highway communications between Tunis and Bizerte, and French forces along the coast swept to within 15 miles of the Bizerte naval base as the Germans pulled out of northern positions after a pounding of almost two weeks, it was announced today.

Advices from the front this afternoon told of the Allied entry into Mateur, 18 miles south-west of Bizerte and 34 miles northwest of Tunis. A French communique announced French troops and Moroccan Goums had made a further advance in the coastal area, bringing their forward elements 15 miles from Bizerte, and rounded up more than 500 prisoners.

Advances also were made in other sectors. The fortnight campaign had exhausted both sides, but after a day of comparative rest Sunday the Allies struck forward again and the enemy defences collapsed in many places.

U.S. and French units co-operated Sunday in the occupation of Ked Rdjal Touila, a group of hills 12 miles northwest of Mateur.

Enemy Withdraws At Several Points

At some other points also there was a slight withdrawal of enemy forces to more convenient or better-defended positions. However, the Germans are still far from cracking in their main endeavor. This is to hold their strong points in the Medjerda River valley and adjacent heights to prevent Allied tanks from getting through it into the fan-like plain of Tunis and thus bringing about the final debacle, which Gen. Henri Giraud predicted Sunday would come this month.

Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army, which is finding the fight in the rugged hills of the southern front harder than in the desert, repulsed a small enemy counterattack Sunday in the coastal area northeast of Enfidaville. Otherwise, its activity was limited to patrols.

Four miles southwest of Pont du Fahs, at the "hinge" between the British 1st and 8th Armies, two enemy attacks compelled units of the Gen. Marie Louis Keltz' 19th French Corps to draw back for some hours, but at the end of the day they had re-established themselves in their morning positions.

"There is no doubt that both sides are licking their wounds," a headquarters spokesman said.

Difficult Country For Operations

Both Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's offensive and the Axis counterattacks have been conducted day after day over difficult terrain and in bad weather, fog and frequent showers. But a resumption of heavy action was expected soon.

The Monday communique summed up ground operations Sunday in three sentences: "There was a lull on the Tunisian front Sunday. Our patrols were active, and two local attacks by the enemy were repulsed. Some prisoners were taken."

The total of prisoners taken by the U.S. forces and the French in the Ked Rdjal Touila sector and by other American units to the south of it, Saturday, was officially listed as 641, of whom 66 were Germans and the remainder Italians.

(The fact Italians were among the prisoners suggested the Fascist units had been returned to the west front to supplement Nazi lines after a brief rest, since it was announced at headquarters Thursday that enemy troops facing the British 1st Army and the Americans at that time were composed entirely of Germans.)

Boeing Workers Taking Vote On Return to Work

VANCOUVER (CP) — Whether or not plants of the Boeing Aircraft of Canada Ltd. will return to production immediately was being decided this afternoon at a mass meeting of some 8,000 employees who have been idle since Wednesday because of a dispute over rest periods.

Those attending the meeting were requested to answer yes or no to a ballot asking: "Do you favor returning to work and continuing relentlessly your efforts until your just demands are attained?"

An all-night meeting of shop stewards and the executive of the Aeronautical Mechanics' Lodge No. 756 (A.F.L.) had agreed to submit the proposal to a standing vote, but subsequently it was found the union constitution does not permit such procedure, but requires a secret ballot.

FOUR PLANTS CLOSED

Four Boeing plants, engaged principally in production of Catalina flying-boats, have been affected by the shutdown, enforced on orders from the federal Department of Munitions and Supply when the employees took an unauthorized rest period last Wednesday morning.

Previously an application from the employees for two 10-minute rest periods on each eight-hour shift had been rejected by the department.

Resolutions requesting the federal government to order re-opening of the four Boeing plants and appointment of a commission to investigate production were introduced at a May Day mass meeting Sunday. Reporters estimated the crowd at about 25,000. No dissenting voice was heard when the motions were put before the crowd.

The resolution demanding the Royal Commission was introduced by Elgin Ruddell, shop steward of Aeronautical Mechanics' Lodge.

BEHIND SCHEDULE

Ruddell said he was asking for the probe because: "First, that the production of P.B.V. bombers is 10 months behind schedule; secondly, that the 54 already built have all been condemned for an eight-degree list; and thirdly, that seething unrest exists owing to these factors and the labor policy of Bell (Ralph P. Bell, national director of aircraft production) and the government."

U.S. Loan Over By 4 Billions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The second war loan drive in the United States brought in about $17,000,000,000 or around $40,000,000,000 more than the goal, and most of it came from non-banking sources.

The Treasury expects to announce the final total about May 10. Banking houses were limited to $5,000,000,000 participation.

Ickes to Attempt Peace Movement In Next 2 Weeks

WASHINGTON (CP) — John L. Lewis said coal production would be resumed Tuesday, but thousands of United States miners went back to the pits today in compliance with the demand of President Roosevelt.

Eight major mines in Ohio, operating under the flag of the United States, had nearly normal complements of workers.

"The men are going back as fast as they can be notified," said Adolph Pancilio, district United Mines Workers leader in eastern Ohio. "I expect the afternoon shift will be normal."

Kentucky and Pennsylvania miners went back today at a slower pace, but it was evident from reports coming from the fields, taken over by the government Saturday, that Mr. Roosevelt's radio speech Sunday night had a deep effect on the miners. The U.M.W. called a meeting of its national policy committee for 4 p.m., E.D.T., today in New York City, apparently, to discuss the next move. A spokesman said there was some uncertainty whether future negotiations would take place in New York or in Washington.

Workers Realize Dangers of Stoppage

Those working today without waiting for the Lewis deadline of Tuesday were regarded as giving evidence of a desire by the men to heed the President's warning that nothing must hinder production of coal for the war effort.

The President said a stoppage of production would involve a "terribly dangerous gamble" with the chances of victory in the war. (See text of address Page 3).

During the next few days, Fuel Administrator Harold L. Ickes will seek to settle the wage contract dispute between the miners and operators.

President Roosevelt's appeal over the radio Sunday night for uninterrupted production of coal followed by 20 minutes Lewis' announcement of a 15-day truce. The President held to his prepared speech without taking notice of the union leader's announcement and Presidential Secretary Stephen Early told reporters this morning the White House still had had no word from Lewis or other U.M.W. officials.

"We don't know yet from the mine workers that the report is correct," Early said. "That's not being technical, but the government can't depend 100 per cent on reports, although it can take guidance and cognizance of unofficial reports from the press and radio."

Early said he thought it was worth noting that the President's speech contained "not a word or statement that does not hold equally true two days from now, two weeks from now, two months from now or two years from now."

He repeated that remark when asked about Mr. Roosevelt's statement that War Labor Board would have to approve any wage adjustments that might be made between operators and miners.

Many Telegrams Support President

The Presidential secretary said baskets of telegrams had come into the White House following the President's address and that he had seen this morning a stack six or eight inches high approving Mr. Roosevelt's remarks and another about one inch thick siding with the strikers.

There seemed no question but that Tuesday's shifts—at the very latest—would find the industry operating full blast again. The President appealed to the miners Sunday night to go back to work for their country—literally, with the government operating more than 3,850 mines—and cease "obstructing our war effort."

Mr. Roosevelt did not mention Lewis by name, but his appeal to the miners—whose full scale walkout followed the latter's call to "trespass" on company property without a contract—came just 20 minutes after the U.M.W. chieftain had announced the truce in New York.

Lewis said the union's policy committee had voted unanimously "to restore all mines to immediate operation for a period of 15 days beginning Tuesday." He said the truce would be spent in seeking to work out new contracts to replace those which had expired in the hard and soft coal industries.

Ickes to Confer With Disputants

Labor Secretary Frances Perkins said Ickes, picked by the President to direct operations of the mines for the government, would confer with the disputants during the 15-day period and try to bring them together.

The decision was made after Lewis and other leaders had conferred with Ickes during a sudden Sunday trip here from New York, where the contract negotiations had been in progress.

There was speculation in labor circles early today that the most likely compromise ground would be found in discussions of a universal six-day week for the coal mining industry.

While reliable informants said this was one of the chief subjects discussed at the Sunday pre-truce conference here, Secretary Perkins told reporters the truce included no promises to the

Posh Enjoys Home Life After Adventures At Sea

Posh, four-year-old purebred cocker spaniel saved from H.M. C.S. Weyburn, which went down in the Mediterranean, Sunday afternoon came home to Victoria and an adoring young mistress, pretty, fair-haired Pamela Golby, the six-year-old daughter of Lt. Cmdr. T. W. Golby, who lost his life in the sinking.

Posh went wild with joy the minute he saw Pamela and her mother. Pam went wild with joy too. She jumped up and down with delight. Mrs. Golby looked anxiously for signs of injury, nervousness or deafness in the much-travelled dog. But Posh was in perfect shape. He showed absolutely no sign of the ordeal he had been through.

This morning at the Golby home at Ten Mile Point, Posh romped and played with his young mistress in the lovely rock garden.

WELL-MANNERED

"He hasn't forgotten any of his tricks and he's still well-mannered," said Mrs. Golby, and to prove her mother was right, Pam told Posh to sit up and beg and that is just what Posh did.

"My, if only Posh could talk," said Mrs. Golby. "He can talk," said Pam, as Posh wagged his tail.

Pam thought her mother was handling Posh too roughly as Mrs. Golby fixed the handsome dog for his picture.

"You're choking him, mummy," said Pam, with a worried look.

As soon as Posh reached home Sunday he had a thorough bath and combing. He was given a good meal, but, by the look of him, he has had plenty to eat and the best of care.

"He didn't want to go out anywhere last night," said Pam and Mrs. Golby said "he just curled up in front of the fire. He's not going to go traveling again... he's going to stay right at home."

And Posh shows every sign of being contented at home. He follows his young mistress about, he dozes in the sun and walks among the tulips.

The only thing that seems to disturb Posh is the telephone. Mrs. Golby said, "Sunday night, when the phone rang, Posh got up in a hurry and raced about the house with an anxious expression."

"I didn't quite know what to make of it," Mrs. Golby said, "unless the telephone bell sounded like action stations to him."

FINE KENNEL

Posh came across Canada in a magnificent kennel, over Canadian National Lines. But Posh isn't any too fond of that kennel—he spent too many days cooped up in it for his liking.

"He isn't very happy here," said Pam, as Posh was put on top of the kennel to have his picture taken.

Mrs. Golby and Pam hadn't seen Posh since last August, when Lt. Cmdr. Golby took him away to sea as ship's mascot. Posh made friends wherever he went. The sailors all loved him and petted him.

Weyburn sailors have described Posh as "the saltiest dog in port and the slickest and slickest at sea." As the Weyburn was sinking, Posh slid down the side of the ship and was pulled aboard a Carley float by a sailor. Posh went to hospital in Gibraltar with other injured and sick sailors. When the sailors left Gibraltar they had to disguise Posh, so they put him in a dunnage bag and the dog co-operated perfectly. He knew if he was found, officialdom might quarantine him for six months. On trains in England he traveled the same way, "for all the world like an old bundle of towels and shaving gear," as one sailor put it. Finally he got aboard a ship for Canada, made a few appearances in the east in support of the Victory Loan before starting west.

"I'm never going to let Posh go away again," said delighted, dimpled Pam, as she put her arm around her hero's neck today. Posh responded with an affectionate lick.

"He's trying to kiss me, I guess," said Pam.

Bomb Ijmuiden, Thionville After Raid On St. Nazaire

LONDON (CP)—R.A.F. bombers and fighters fought their way through German fighter plane opposition to attack industrial targets in the Netherlands coastal city of Ijmuiden Sunday, and followed up a heavy attack Saturday by big U.S. bombers on the German submarine base at St. Nazaire, France.

Mosquito bombers sped across France virtually without opposition late Sunday, and unloaded delayed-action bombs from rooftop level on railroad shops at Thionville, a centre of the Lorraine iron and coal transport network, and junction of the main Rhine Valley-Paris line and the Brussels-Saarbrücken line. Pilots said their cargoes crashed through the main shop buildings. R.C.A.F. Spitfire squadrons also were in action Saturday, sweeping over the Ushant area of northern France. A few Focke-Wulf 190s were sighted, but the Nazis offered no fight.

Squadron Ldr. C. M. Magwood, Toronto, Squad Ldr. Lloyd Chadburn, Aurora, Ont., and P.O. Ken Marshall, Milton, Ont., threw bursts of cannon and machine gun fire at the fleeing German planes, but were not able to observe results.

One R.C.A.F. plane was lost while on ship reconnaissance duty.

The British raiders shot down four of the enemy planes, but lost four of their own fighters.

Seven of the U.S. bombers were lost in the smash at St. Nazaire, which was carried out in heavy weather and against determined resistance by squadrons of German Focke-Wulf planes.

The weather forced the American aircraft to separate on the return flight, and made it difficult to determine immediately the number of German planes destroyed.

The German radio claimed 11 four-engine bombers were destroyed. It was the first announced raid by U.S. bombers based in Britain since the attack on Bremen April 17, in which 16 planes were lost.

Colin Bednall, London Daily Mail air correspondent, rode with the American bombers to St. Nazaire and returned with this enthusiastic comment: "Now that I have been in action with the United States heavy bombardment squadrons I am more convinced than ever that they have one of the really great answers of the war."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"This time it's for keeps," said actress Ava Gardner as she filed suit for divorce Saturday against Mickey Rooney, youthful film star. She charges in her complaint that 21-year-old Mickey had caused her "grievous mental suffering." She does not ask alimony. Miss Gardner twice before had instituted and abandoned divorce proceedings.

Canada Invests $372,544,900

OTTAWA (CP)—The Fourth Victory Loan swung into the second week of the three-week campaign today with a total of $372,544,900 subscribed—slightly more than one-third of the minimum objective of $1,100,000,000.

Subscriptions on Saturday, final day of the first week, totaled $59,785,350, keeping the average daily figure just above $60,000,000.

The first week of the Third Victory Loan drive rolled up a total of $312,410,900, but the objective then was $750,000,000. The corresponding day's total in the last loan was $53,642,850.

The National War Finance Committee said the aim of obtaining $500,000,000 from the general public canvass and the payroll division meant a 33 per cent increase in dollars and a sharp increase in the number of subscribers.

Analysis of the first week's records showed the increase in dollars so far was 19 per cent and in numbers 13 per cent. Officials described this as "promising, but only moderately so."

MUST BE MODERATE G. W. Spinney, chairman of the National War Finance Committee, commenting on this analysis, said: "Canada as a whole is doing better than in any previous loan, but is not doing well enough yet."

He paid tribute to the record of the armed forces, particularly the army, which had subscribed $5,335,000, compared with $2,700,000 in the entire Third Victory Loan.

"We cannot be satisfied with our present advance over the Third Victory Loan," said Mr. Spinney. "We must march forward strongly to higher ground and greater increases. It has

Jap Air Fleet Loses 13 Planes In Darwin Battle

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA (CP)—A fleet of Japanese warplanes—21 bombers and 30 fighters—struck at the Allied airbase near Darwin, Australia, Sunday and inflicted heavy losses on Allied fighters in a fierce air battle.

Fighters manned by Allied pilots, rose in force to intercept. The ensuing battle raged over the Darwin area and the Arafura Sea to the north. Thirteen enemy planes were destroyed or damaged, a communique said Monday.

"Our own losses were heavy," it added.

(A Japanese communique, broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press, claimed the attacking Japanese had destroyed 21 Allied fighters without loss and severely damaged important war installations.)

Three enemy fighters were destroyed; one bomber and nine fighters were damaged.

JAP CENTRES BOMBED

Even as the Japanese appeared above the Darwin airbase, Allied airmen ranged over enemy targets from New Britain to Timor. The Mubo area, 15 miles south of the Japanese base of Salamaua, New Guinea, came in for a particularly concentrated attack. A medium force of bombers made 42 bombing and strafing runs over the Green's Hill area in support of Allied ground forces.

Medium bombers, raiding the Kai Islands, sighted a small enemy cargo ship and chased it around on a reef. Another formation made a night attack on the Penflet airbase at Kupang, Timor. Numerous fires were started.

A lone heavy bomber on reconnaissance over New Britain dove off seven intercepting Zeros after damaging two.

Meanwhile, a spokesman at A.I.

headquarters, replying to a question, said the Japanese submarine campaign in the southwest Pacific is about as efficient as the Germans in the Atlantic. He commented that Allied shipping losses of less than 1,000,000 tons in the southwest Pacific is approximately a 2 per cent loss, as compared with 2½ per cent loss of a much greater shipping total in the Atlantic.

Times Reporter Saved When Ship Torpedoed

A BRITISH PORT—(CP)—Sixteen R.C.A.F. fliers were rescued from the Atlantic after the freighter in which they were coming to Britain was torpedoed during a blizzard.

The airmen were landed at this port after being picked up by a British corvette which took them from rafts being tossed on 60-foot waves.

The Canadians were adrift for two hours after two torpedoes struck their vessel in the early-evening dusk.

FO. Norman Loudoun, former reporter on Victoria, B.C. Times, said: "I still don't know how the corvette ever managed to take us aboard."

Loudoun was sleeping fully dressed on his bunk when the first torpedo hit. He jumped up, scrambled into his life jacket and hurried on deck.

"I got into one of the free boats lying about and sat there with several other men until we were washed off by the waves as the ship sank," he said.

"The waves were enormous. The corvette's skipper estimated they were 60 feet high. It was pretty tough in the boat and I still don't know how the corvette managed to take us aboard."

FO. Loudoun is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Loudoun, 2546 Dahlia. He joined the air force in 1941 after several years with The Times editorial staff. He was promoted to pilot officer from the ranks, was instructor for some time at Dauphin, Man., and a few months ago was promoted flying officer. He was on leave a few weeks ago, and left April 7 for the east.

PO. Ward Brawn, a bomb-aimer from Harland, N.B., said there were two flashes and the boat began to list. "By the time I got to the boat deck all the boats that could be lowered had gone, so I clambered aboard a raft. At first we couldn't get the raft free as the davits of one boat were in the way. But the ship was settling very swiftly and it wasn't long before the boat deck was awash. We just stayed on the raft and the ship sank under us. Leaving the raft afloat.

"The ship sank slowly and there was no suction or we might have been dragged down. The ship's captain was the last to leave and he was pulled aboard the raft.

"The seas were so rough everybody got sick, but after two hours bobbing about the corvette picked up the survivors off the rafts and lifeboats.

"Those navy boys certainly did a marvellous job under most difficult and treacherous circumstances. They had to pull alongside with the waves throwing us all over the place."

PERSONAL OPINIONS

As the case of Mr. John G. Simpson is no longer "sub judice," permit me to state that the judgment of the courts does not give expression to my estimation of this man's character or value as a citizen of this city and Dominion.

I speak for myself — and, I know, also for a great many Victorians, who have known him personally since his boyhood days — in saying that John Simpson in the midst of present circumstances continues to be held in high esteem, and not as one who because of criminal intent merits the opprobrium of penal servitude.

F.D.R. Announces Crisis

Mine Strike Menace To Nation's Safety

WASHINGTON (AP)—The text of President Roosevelt's Sunday night radio address on coal follows:

I am speaking tonight to the American people and in particular to those of our citizens who are coal miners.

Tonight this country faces a serious crisis. We are engaged in a war on the successful outcome of which depend the whole future of our country.

This war has reached a new critical phase. After the years that we have spent in preparation, we have moved into active and continuing battle with our enemies. We are pouring into the worldwide conflict everything that we have—our young men and the vast resources of our nation.

I have just returned from a two weeks' tour of inspection on which I saw our men being trained and our war materials made. My trip took me through 20 states. I saw thousands of workers on the production line, making airplanes, guns and ammunition.

Everywhere I found great eagerness to get on with the war. Men and women are working long hours at difficult jobs and living under difficult conditions without complaint.

Along thousands of miles of track I saw countless acres of newly-ploughed fields. The farmers of this country are planting the crops that are needed to feed our armed forces, our civilian population and our allies. These crops will be harvested.

On my trip, I saw hundreds of thousands of soldiers. Young men who were green recruits last autumn have matured into self-assured and hardened fighting men. They are in splendid physical condition. They are mastering the superior weapons that are pouring out of our factories.

The American people have accomplished a miracle.

However, all of our massed effort is none too great to meet the demands of this war. We shall need everything that we have and everything that our allies have—to defeat the Nazis and the Fascists in the coming battles on the continent of Europe, and the Japanese on the continent of Asia and in the islands of the Pacific.

This tremendous forward movement of the United States and the United Nations can not be stopped by our enemies.

Equally, it must not be hampered by any one individual or by the leaders of any one group here back home.

All Idle Miners Blocking Effort

I want to make it clear that every American coal miner who has stopped mining coal—no matter how sincere his motives, no matter how legitimate he may believe his grievances to be—every idle miner directly and individually is obstructing our war effort. We have not yet won this war. We will win this war only as we produce and deliver our total American effort on the high seas and on the battlefronts. That requires unremitting, uninterrupted effort here on the home front.

The stopping of the coal supply, even for a short time, would involve a gamble with the lives of American soldiers and sailors and the future security of our whole people. It would involve an unwarranted, unnecessary and terribly dangerous gamble with our chances for victory.

Therefore, I say to all miners—and to all Americans everywhere, at home and abroad—the production of coal will not be stopped.

Tonight, I am speaking to the essential patriotism of the miners, and to patriotism of their wives and children. And I am going to state the true facts of this case as simply and as plainly as I know how.

After the attack at Pearl Harbor, the three great labor organizations—the American Federation of Labor, the Congress of Industrial Organizations and the Railroad Brotherhoods—gave the positive assurance that there would be no strikes as long as the war lasted. The president of the United Mine Workers of America was a party to that assurance.

That pledge was applauded throughout the country. It was a forcible means of telling the world that we Americans—135,000,000 of us—are united in our determination to fight this total war with our total will and our total power.

At the request of employers and of organized labor—including the United Mine Workers—the War Labor Board was set up for settling disputes which could not be adjusted through collective bargaining. The War Labor Board is a tribunal on which workers, employers and the general public are equally represented.

In the present coal crisis, concession and mediation were tried unsuccessfully.

In accordance with the law, the case was then certified to the War Labor Board, the agency created for this express purpose with the approval of organized labor. The members of the board followed the usual practice which has proved successful in other disputes. Acting promptly, they undertook to get all the facts of the case from both the miners and the operators.

The national officers of the United Mine Workers, however, declined to have anything to do with the fact-finding of the War Labor Board. The only excuse that they offer is that the War Labor Board is prejudiced.

The War Labor Board has been and is ready to give the case a fair, impartial hearing. I have given my assurance that if any adjustment of wages is made by the board it will be made retroactive to April 1. But the national officers of the United Mine Workers refused to participate in the hearing when asked to do so last Monday.

On Wednesday of this past week, while the board was proceeding with the case, stoppages began to occur in some mines. On Thursday morning I telegraphed to the officers of the United Mine Workers, asking that the miners continue mining coal on Saturday morning. However, a general strike throughout the industry became effective Friday night.

The responsibility for the crisis that we now face rests squarely on these national officers of the United Mine Workers, and not on the government of the United States.

Arbitrary Action Threatens Everyone

But the consequences of this arbitrary action threaten all of us.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning, the government took over the mines. I called upon the miners to return to work for their government. The government needs their services just as surely as it needs the services of our soldiers, sailors and marines—and the services of the millions who are turning out the munitions of war.

You miners have sons in the army and navy and marine corps. You have sons who at this very minute—this split second—may be fighting in New Guinea, or in the Aleutian Islands, or Guadalcanal, or Tunisia, or protecting troopships and supplies against submarines on the high seas.

We have already received telegrams from some of our fighting men overseas, and I only wish they could tell you what they think of the stoppage of work in the coal mines.

Some of your own sons have come back here from the fighting fronts wounded. A number of them are now here in a hospital in Washington. Several have been decorated by their government.

I could tell you of one from Pennsylvania. He was a coal miner before his induction. His father is a coal miner. He was seriously wounded by Nazi machine-gun bullets while he was on a bombing mission over Europe in a Flying Fortress.

Another boy from Kentucky, the son of a coal miner, was wounded when our troops first landed in North Africa six months ago.

There is still another, from Illinois. He was a coal miner—his father and two brothers are coal miners. He was seriously wounded in Tunisia while attempting to rescue two comrades, whose jeep had been blown up by a Nazi mine.

These men do not consider themselves heroes. They were wounded in the line of duty. They would probably be embarrassed if I mentioned their names over the air. They know how essential it is to the tens of thousands, and ultimately, millions of other young Americans to get the best of arms and equipment into the hands of our fighting forces—and get them there quickly.

The fathers and mothers of our fighting men, their brothers and sisters and friends—and that includes all of us—are also in the line of duty—the production line. Any failure in production may well result in costly defeat on the field of battle.

There can be no one among us—no one faction—powerful enough to interrupt the forward march of our people to victory. You miners have ample reason to know that there are certain basic rights for which this country stands, and that those rights are worth fighting for and dying for. That is why you have sent your sons and brothers from every mining town in the nation to join in the great struggle overseas.

That is why you have contributed so generously, so willingly to the purchase of war bonds and to the many funds for the relief of war victims in foreign lands. That is why, since this war started in 1939, you have increased the annual production of coal by almost 200,000,000 tons a year.

The toughness of your sons in our armed forces is not surprising. They come of fine, rugged stock. Men who work in mines are not unaccustomed to hardship. It has been the objective of this government to reduce that hardship, to obtain for miners and for all who do the nation's work a better standard of living.

I know only too well that the cost of living is troubling the miners' families and the families of millions of other workers throughout the country as well.

Cost of Necessities Will Be Kept Down

A year ago, it became evident to all of us that something had to be done about living costs. Your government determined not to let the cost of living continue to go up as it did in the First World War.

Your government has been determined to maintain stability of both prices and wages—so that a dollar would buy as far as possible the same amount of the necessities of life. And by necessities I mean just that—not the luxuries and fancy goods that we have learned to do without, in wartime.

So far, we have not been able to keep the prices of some necessities as low as we should have liked to. That is true not only in coal towns, but in any other places.

Whenever we find that prices of essentials have risen too high, they will be brought down. Whenever we find that price ceilings are being violated, the violators will be punished.

Rents have been fixed in most parts of the country. In many cities they have been cut to below where they were before we entered the war. Clothing prices have generally remained stable. These two items make up more than a third of the total budget of the worker's family.

As for food, which today accounts for about a third of the family expenditure on the average, I want to repeat again: Your government will continue to take all necessary measures to eliminate unjustified and avoidable price increases. We are now taking measures to "roll back" the prices of meats.

The war is going to go on. Coal will be mined no matter what individual thinks about it. The operation of our factories, our power plants, our railroads will not be stopped. Our munitions must move to our troops.

Under these circumstances, it is inconceivable that any patriotic miner can choose any course other than going back to work and mining coal.

The nation cannot afford violence of any kind at the coal mines or in coal towns. I have placed authority for the resumption of coal mining in the hands of a civilian, the Secretary of the Interior. If it becomes necessary to protect any miner who seeks patriotically to go back and work, then that miner must have and his family must have—complete and adequate protection. If it becomes necessary to have troops at the mine mouths or in coal towns for the protection of working miners and their families, those troops will be doing police duty for the sake of the nation as a whole; and particularly for the sake of the fighting men in the army, navy and the marines—your sons and mine—who are fighting our common enemies all over the world.

I understand the devotion of the coal miners to their union. I know of the sacrifices they have made to build it up. I believe now, as I have all my life, in the right of workers to join unions and to protect their unions. I want to make it absolutely clear that this government is not going to do anything now to weaken those rights in the coal fields.

Every improvement in the conditions of the coal miners of this country has had my hearty support. I do not mean to desert them now. But I also do not mean to desert my obligations and responsibilities as President and Commander-in-Chief.

The first necessity is the resumption of coal mining. The terms of the old contract will be followed by the Secretary of the Interior. If an adjustment in wages results from a decision of the War Labor Board or from any new agreement between the operators and miners, which is approved by the War Labor Board, that adjustment will be made retroactive to April 1.

In the message that I delivered to the Congress four months ago, I expressed my conviction that the spirit of this nation is good.

Since then I have seen our troops in the Caribbean area, in bases on the coasts of our ally, Brazil, and in North Africa. Recently I have again seen great numbers of our fellow countrymen—soldiers and civilians—from the Atlantic seaboard to the Mexican border and to the Rocky Mountains.

Tonight, in the face of a crisis of serious proportions in the coal industry, I say again that the spirit of this nation is good. I know that the American people will not tolerate any threat offered to their government by anyone. I believe the coal miners will not continue the strike against the government. I believe that the coal miners themselves as Americans will not fail to heed the clear call to duty. Like all other good Americans, they will march shoulder to shoulder with their armed forces to victory.

Tomorrow the Stars and Stripes will fly over the coal mines. I hope every miner will be at work under that flag.

Max Liebermann's Widow Commits Suicide

NEW YORK (AP)—The 85-year-old widow of Max Liebermann, one of Germany's famous painters, committed suicide in Berlin because she was about to be deported by the Nazis and could not obtain enough "ransom money," the Swiss newspaper St. Gallen Tagblatt was quoted by the Office of War Information. Liebermann's paintings hung in most continental galleries. He died in 1935.

Mr. Roosevelt's Warning

PERHAPS THE SKIN OF MR. JOHN L. Lewis is of too stout a texture to be impressed seriously by such a warning as that which Mr. Roosevelt last night issued to him and others who are seemingly not above placing sectional interests ahead of the urgent requirements of the nation. The fact that the chief of the United Mine Workers' organization consented to a truce of two weeks, during which time wiser councils may be permitted to prevail, would seem to suggest that even one so set in his ways and conduct as Mr. Lewis was compelled to give ground in the face of circumstances that Secretary of the Interior Ickes previously no doubt had presented without frills.

Throughout his simple and straightforward appeal to the miners to go back to work, however, President Roosevelt resorted to no threats against the men themselves. He knows—and said so—that those who work in the coal mines, under the best of conditions, are by no means the object of envy. And the chief executive was careful to assure the strikers that if it were found that other interests had not lived up to their obligations, had connived at or had actually broken the commodity ceiling structure, for example, appropriate punishment would be their lot. By the same token, too, such wage adjustments as the inquiry would be undertaken might recommend would be retroactive to the first of last month.

Not the least of Mr. Roosevelt's strictures was the reminder that Mr. Lewis was a party to the agreement into which the A.F. of L., the C.I.O., and the Railway Brotherhood entered at the beginning of the war—that there would be no strikes. But the head of the United Mine Workers evidently has felt all along that nothing must be allowed to interfere with his personal vendetta against the President. And the first few moments of the broadcast last night echoed a tone in Mr. Roosevelt's voice that betrayed not a little emotion. Small wonder; the stopping of coal production for even a short time could be nothing less than a "terrible gamble with our chances of victory."

Not Well Enough Yet

CANADA AS A WHOLE IS DOING BETTER than in any previous appeal; but is not doing well enough yet. So said Mr. George W. Spinney, chairman of the National War Finance Committee, in Toronto yesterday. He was discussing the response to Canada's Fourth Victory Loan as the campaign was about to go into its second week. Twelve working days remain in which to accelerate subscriptions. Upon the increase of the number of purchases by the "little people" of Canada depends the success of this issue. No doubt thousands who come within this category are taking stock of their financial resources; most of them assuredly will be heard from before the week is out.

Worthy of especial note at this point of the campaign is the fact that the Canadian army by the end of business on Saturday had passed the $4,500,000 mark, compared with a response of $2,700,000 to the Third Victory Loan. Record-breaking all across Canada, moreover, applies with particular emphasis to the soldiers on Vancouver Island; their quota for the three weeks was set at $285,000, and it already has been reached—or twice the actual amount of the doubled quota of last fall. Similar remarks apply to the Royal Canadian Air Force at Patricia Bay. Its members set themselves a $54,000 objective; this was left behind last Friday with a $15,000 carryover for this week's effort. And the smaller establishment of the Royal Air Force has doubled its third loan quota—with 12 working days to go.

With $372,544,900 subscribed for the whole of Canada—better than this time last fall—the average person will realize that if the Dominion is to reach and substantially pass the minimum sum of $1,100,000,000 for which the Minister of Finance is asking, the civilian population will have to emulate the record-breaking process of the army and air forces.

Mr. Litvinov's Recall

FOR THE TIME BEING THE PUBLIC will have to be satisfied with the simple statement that M. Maxim Litvinov, Soviet ambassador to the United States, is going to Moscow for consultations with Premier Stalin and his colleagues. Some of those on the outer edge of American official life, and not a few newspaper and radio commentators, are indulging in their special variety of speculation. They list the Russian-Polish imbroglio, the opening of a "second front," the comparatively slow progress of the war in the Pacific, and the attitude of the people of the United States toward the masses and government of the Soviet Union as a few of the topics which the distinguished diplomat and statesman is expected to discuss with his chief in the Kremlin. One prediction is that Mr. Litvinov will broach the feasibility of President Roosevelt meeting Mr. Stalin.

A face-to-face chat between the political heads of the two great republics, which constitute about one-sixth of the world's population and approximately a fifth of the earth's land surface, would go a long way toward removing—or, at least, providing an opportunity for an intimate analysis of—some of the suspicion existing among sections of the public and elements in the governments of both countries for which, or so it would seem; there is no real justification. It nevertheless exists and is blurred out from time to time to the embarrassment of all those concerned. Nazi propaganda, of course, has helped to foment the fear of Communism, world revolution, and the hundred and one dire consequences which the Herr Doktor Goebbels paints as the sequel to a Russian victory over the Reich.

Many still swallow such twaddle; they seem to have neither the desire nor the capacity to analyze basic facts or basic conditions. Even the certain metamorphosis in Russia's material and political—yes, even spiritual—prospects envisioned for the next quarter of a century suggests to many a moderately-penetrative mind a program of growth and development within the Soviet domain that should outlaw the promulgation of doctrines likely to conflict and endanger her own hopes and aspirations consequent upon a United Nations victory. Mr. Stalin's May Day pronouncement, likewise, should clear the film from some eyes that see Soviet armies halting at the German frontier. In that message to the world, the Premier of the Soviet Union declared himself for "unconditional surrender" as the price of peace—thus aligning Russia solidly behind the Casablanca dictum of Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt. But Mr. Stalin's absence from that memorable meeting still is being variously and fantastically interpreted by some—according to the whim of the moment or a more deep-seated prejudice. However, as Sir Bernard Pares, the outstanding British authority among all external-observers of the Soviet scene, said in Victoria recently:

"The prevailing moral standards of Russia are much the same as those in Britain and the United States; these two countries can get along with Russia if they choose, and the British are determined to do so. While on this continent I have heard loose talk of a third war against Russia. Do not expect us to take any part in such criminal foolishness, or throw away a friend whom Hitler so foolishly gave us beyond the deserts of our past understanding."

In other words, it is high time all the United Nations, particularly the major partners, made common cause in a composite declaration, now, of both war and peace aims. A more potent type of propaganda than has marked Allied publicity to date is needed for universal dissemination. Nothing would strike more devastatingly at the heart of the Hitlerian fetish than a word to the effect that an agreement had been reached between the United States and the Soviet Union to complement or to integrate with the 20-year pact between the London and Moscow governments.

Nurses' Qualifications

AMONG SEVERAL IMPORTANT RESOLUTIONS adopted by British Columbia's Parent-Teacher Federation in convention in Vancouver last week was one demanding that "the present standard for entrance to the nursing profession be abolished and high school graduation be made the requirement for young women entering this profession." Not only is the sentiment expressed in the foregoing in keeping with enlightened thought, it likewise reflects the view of a majority of the members of the medical profession, hospital executives harassed by insistent and growing demands for nursing help, as well as a realistic public. Now that the full implication of the Federation's resolution is understood by all thinking people of the province it will probably dawn on the unimaginative and narrow-gauge opponents of such a measure that it does not entail a lowering of the standards of the nursing profession; on the contrary. Under the suggested new requirements, greater attention could be given to the more practical side of pre-nursing education, with more emphasis on biology and home economics—yes, and psychological considerations, too—and less on languages and the higher mathematics.

With the change advocated, moreover, there would be no hindrance to the very small proportion who desire to go on to the administrative or public health nursing fields; and it would obviously encourage the many would-be candidates for a noble profession who have not the highly-academic mind, but who do possess those invaluable and practical humanitarian and sociological qualities that by no stretch of the imagination can be measured by the hard-and-fast scholastic yardstick.

To close the door to those whose aptitude is in itself half the equipment demanded of this or any other specialized calling is both foolish and uneconomic. Surely at the next session of the provincial Legislature, therefore, the requisite regulation will be adopted in accordance with the demands of the Parent-Teacher Federation and many other bodies.

CONCEPT

A REVIEW OF a recent book dismisses it contemptuously as a mere "popularization." This expresses a common attitude—the theory that popularity is necessarily wrong. The critics generally accept and promote this theory, especially in the literary world, and shrug off any writing which is read. They much prefer the ponderous book which is not read.

If popularity is proof of mediocrity then, of course, many books now highly esteemed are unworthy of the attention of serious men. The most popular book of all times is the King James Bible. It is a pure popularization. It is the simple tale of the Scriptures told for ordinary men, not for critics or professors. Shakespeare was the greatest popularizer in history. He wrote for the London audiences, who would pay him, and he never wasted a moment thinking about all the critics, essayists and literary sleuths who would pursue his work down the centuries.

Also, one might add, eating is popular. So is love. There are some critics who, for that reason, object to both, but there are not many. They usually confine their hatred of the popular to the realm of literature.

Now the real fault of writing nowadays is not that it is popular but that it fails to be popular enough. If there is any value in writing it is the ability of writing to get itself read. A book of genius which no one sees does not exercise any profound effect on the world; whereas Mr. H. G. Wells, by wrapping his theories in exciting novels, has vastly influenced the thought of his time. Yet many of the best minds of our time refuse to be popular. They will not write anything that the public can understand. They prefer to bury their best ideas in dull, obscure books because it is beneath their dignity to write for the common man. This is called genius. Usually it is plain inability to write understandably.

CHILDISH IDEAS

THE RESULT IS that the public has never been able to keep its information and intelligence abreast of events in our mad age. Even the simplest facts of economics have escaped the public because the men who knew them and could explain them wouldn't sink to the public level. They insisted on explaining them to other professors and authorities and a few students who, however, did not control the franchise. With familiar results.

Why, it was impossible to convey to the American people before this war the perfectly obvious, elemental and almost childish idea that they could not collect foreign debts while refusing to admit goods, the only method of payment. For 10 years or more the American people insisted that the debts must be paid, but also insisted on maintaining tariffs which prevented any possibility of any payment. The simple idea had never been put over to them. The professors knew it. The experts knew it. But they could not popularize it.

Too late the Americans found out. They may be too late, we may all be too late in finding out certain other childish simple ideas, like collective security and the need of trade in the world. However, we are beginning to popularize them a little better than we did the problems of the prewar world. We now have at the head of affairs in the United States and Britain two of the greatest popularizers on record.

Neither Mr. Roosevelt nor Mr. Churchill refuses to get down to the public's level. On the contrary, they refuse to get above it. Every word they say is understandable to any person over eight years of age. Their speeches do not read like the professors' books, the critics' essays. There are no long words and tortured sentences in them—and no lofty assumption of knowledge in the audience, which is always the mark of the savant. They assume that everybody is just average and no more, and doesn't know much. Thus while the professors pile 100 times more information into an essay than Mr. Churchill ever put into a speech, he is able to educate the world more in half an hour than all the professors do, working jointly, in a lifetime.

THE SWAMP

WHAT WE NEED are more people who can popularize and simplify great, complex ideas so that the ordinary man can get hold of them. That is the only real hope of the world. For it is obvious that if the ordinary man does not know much more after this war than he ever knew before, it then we shall go smash again, as we did the last time, in a period when all the professors were busy trying to save us. They would do anything to save us—anything but talk to us in our own language. They refused to be popular. They fled from popularity as from a plague.

My eye lights at this moment on a sentence from a review of a new history of France. It says the author "rightly considers that the most serious impediment to such understanding is the deceptive similarity of the historical processes through which Britain and France respectively have passed." How many people, encountering this swamp of words, will go any further? How many will read the history of France?

It is not intended that many should. It is intended that the elect shall read it and discuss it among themselves and sniff at the crowd passing in the street. It seems to be forgotten that it is the crowd which makes history. The professors only record it afterwards, when it is too late to do anything about it.

Round-the-World Short Route Demands Free Mediterranean

After Tunisia is cleared of the Huns of Nazidom and their consorts, the Mediterranean Sea must be freed of every Axis base and boat if the round-the-world route, or even the short route to India, is to be available to the transports and cargo boats of the Allied Nations.

"Round-the-world" to England and the United States, from west to east, by the shortest route, means from the Atlantic Ocean, through the Straits of Gibraltar, nearly 2,000 miles through the Mediterranean to Port Said. Then the route leads on by way of the Suez Canal, the Red Sea and the Gulf of Aden, roughly another 2,000 miles, to the Indian Ocean.

Keeping south of India and Ceylon, the round-the-world route passes between the Malay Peninsula and Sumatra, and then by way of the south China Sea to the passageway between the Philippines and Borneo. These waters are now Japanese-infested, but the Allied "doctors" are about ready to clean up the infection.

From the Philippine area the route proceeds eastward to the western coast of America, or via the Panama Canal to the eastern coast. Hawaii is on it. Manila will be on it when the Philippines are freed from the Japs.

CHURCHILL'S CATS

From London Calling

Mentioning Mr. Churchill's return to London after his visit to Casablanca, Macdonald Hastings says the Prime Minister had a special greeting for his two cats. For the past weeks they had been disconsolately roaming the corridors of 10 Downing Street looking for their master.

Mr. Hastings said: "The cats—two gigantic neuters—are Mr. Churchill's special pets. And when Mr. Churchill is in Downing Street or the War Cabinet offices the cats are never far away. Indeed the secretariat usually know when Mr. Churchill is about the place by the presence of his cats. It's a curious thing that in all the millions of words written about the Prime Minister since the war started I've never come across a mention of the fact that he's an ardent cat-lover."

KILL THIS RUMOR

From Financial Post

Recently going the rounds has been the story that Air Force gasoline has been getting into improper hands; that plane tanks are drained to prevent gasoline condensation after a flight and that the gasoline is then thrown away.

The truth, the Financial Post is told, is that high octane aviation gasoline will cause trouble if used in most automobiles. Also that plane tanks are filled to the brim to get rid of condensation, not drained. The only drainage that takes place appears to be when traps on the fuel line where water and other impurities collect are cleaned out. This impure gas is, of course, thrown away.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT PAYS From Comox Argus

Many of the ratepayers of the newly created municipality of Qualicum Beach were surprised and delighted when they got their tax notices. They were surprised because they thought that their taxes would be much higher and they found they were materially lower. When the municipality was being formed a good deal of opposition came from large ratepayers, who thought that their taxes would be much increased; in fact that was the only source of opposition. More than that, the taxpayers find that their road needs are being attended to promptly. Before, they had to wait until the provincial board of works could release their grader and both parties wanted it at the same time; now they can do the work when it is required. The result is patent to anyone living in Qualicum Beach. There were only five complaints at the court of revision, of which three were allowed. The mill rate struck was 12 and the ratepayers learnt that the infant municipality had put aside $1,500 in Victory Bonds for a reserve. The old idea that the province can run your community business cheaper than you can yourselves is certainly not true of Qualicum Beach.

We will have to assume responsibility to the limits of our capacity if the boat we are all in is to stay afloat, much less get anywhere.—President Everett Case of Colgate.

Davis to Make Study Of Sidney Housing

An informal survey of housing conditions in Sidney will be made by Mrs. W. E. Rayfuse, manager of the National Housing Registry here, and L. F. Davis, assistant to the Real Property Administrator, when the latter arrives in Victoria about the middle of May.

Purpose of the visit, according to Mrs. Rayfuse, will be to study the situation and see if anything can be done. Mr. Davis is in New Westminster at present.

"People have come in here telling us that conditions at Sidney are very bad," she said, adding that though a considerable number of people are seeking accommodation there, not a single housekeeping room or apartment is listed for rent with the Registry.

The Registry has found it necessary to locate many applicants in the city of Victoria through inability to obtain accommodation in Sidney.

$100 Worth of Prizes Dropped From Skies

One hundred dollars' worth of lucky leaflets were distributed through downtown Victoria Saturday during Victory Loan celebrations. The naval gun which took part in the parade fired 150,000, while circling planes showered 200,000 more.

Lucky leaflets, characterized by a row of red Union Jacks printed on the left side, bear the inscription, "This lucky coupon is good for $1 in War Savings Stamps if presented by May 15 to National War Finance Offices, 531 Baston Street."

Prizes for finders of the specially-marked leaflets have been donated by the British American Paint Co. Ltd.

Smart West Coast Salvage Job By Navy Crew

H.M.C.S. Surf parked between the rocks.

By LT. A. O. FATE, R.C.N.V.R.

When H.M.C.S. Surf ran aground one stormy January night up Vancouver Island's rugged seaward coastline, and her smashed hull jammed firmly into a rocky cleft, her crew stood wet and shivering in the windy darkness and said good-bye to her.

No one knew precisely what had happened.

This stout little ship from the Royal Canadian Navy's Fishermen's Reserve fleet had been pushing her way along through the mounting Pacific swells. Tempestuous winds and seas were an old familiar routine for this former fish-packer, now manned and gunned for war with the Japs. But suddenly, through the blackness 100 feet ahead, the luminous whiteness of breakers was sighted. The command "full astern" was snapped to the engine-room; but before the vessel could be stopped she struck and grounded.

MACHINERY SAVED

Surf's hull was damaged beyond repair, but today $12,000 worth of her machinery is stored in a building in H.M.C. dockyard in Esquimalt, B.C., and $12,000 worth of machinery was salvaged only because of the seamanship, endurance and ingenuity of a handful of men of the Fishermen's Reserve.

ASHORE STERN FIRST

With her engines pounding at full astern, Surf had moved into the breaking seas. A swell caught her and in a wink swept her around, driving her stern first into the narrow rocky gully.

All Surf's ratings got ashore—all but Tel. John D. Campbell,

R.C.N., of Vancouver. He had, he figured, a duty to perform, that of reporting the mishap and summoning help. While the ship's side abreast the tiny wireless office was pounding on the rocks, Campbell remained at his set endeavoring to transmit a message. Not until he was ordered by his commanding officer to come up on deck and bring his set with him, did Campbell leave his post.

For four nights and three days the men of this small ship's company were stranded on the remote, rockbound shoreline. Each night signal fires were burned in vain. All night watches were kept. Fortunately it had been possible the first morning to bring food and supplies ashore from Surf.

On the morning of the fifth day a fishing vessel, Bruce No. 1, was attracted by signals. She nosed her way carefully in through the surf, coming near enough to be asked and send a message to Esquimalt. Word of the wreck reached the R.C.N. base and on the sixth day H.M.C.S. Van Isle was ordered to the position of Surf. In the meantime, H.M.C.S. Foam, who was in the area, investigated, embarked the crew of the Surf and reported that salvage by her was impossible.

By now, however, the wheels were turning in Esquimalt. A salvage party under Lt. William Reay, R.C.N.R., was being organized. H.M.C.S. Leelo, another former fishing boat, and a salvage party, left Esquimalt and arrived on the scene on the eighth day.

Surf was lying in an awkward position and Lt. Reay decided the only chance of salvage was to refloat the ship in her present position. To do this, he estimated, would require filling the damaged vessel with about 140 empty gasoline drums.

USED OIL DRUMS

Where to get the empty drums was one of the first problems. Leelo put out to sea and called on an oil company. Here she procured 15 drums. She next visited a logging company and got 53 empty drums. This totaled less than half the drums required.

On the 10th day the entire salvage party went ashore. They loaded Surf's engine room and hold with the empty gasoline drums and batted them down with driftwood picked up off the beach. The fuel and fresh water tanks were emptied and made water tight to provide extra buoyancy.

Before sundown a tow line was made fast to Surf and at 10.30, the 11th day, an hour and a half before high water, Leelo started to pull Surf. Under the careful handling of her captain, and under the watchful eye of Lieut. Reay, Leelo was able to move Surf no more than six feet. Just a half an hour before high water there were sounds of disgust from the crew when the shackle of the tow line broke.

By now it had become apparent to Lieut. Reay that Leelo would not by herself be able to pull Surf free. H.M.C.S. San Tomas was ordered to assist.

More gasoline drums were required. San Tomas put out to sea. At 6.45 she was back with 13 more drums.

On the 13th morning a south-east wind was freshening. San Tomas and Leelo commenced towing, but because of the increasing surge of the swell they were forced to stop. The two vessels were returned to their cove to await more moderate weather.

Soon after daylight the following morning Leelo and San Tomas again jockeyed in through the swell and got into position. Tow lines were made fast and the two vessels moved seaward and took up the slack. On the 14th day after she went aground, Surf was pulled free. She was towed to a cove and beached.

FINALLY FLOATED

Although Surf was at last afloat, Lieut. Reay knew there were troubles and headaches ahead. For instance, it didn't take long to see that still more drums were required. Instead, he set his men to constructing a small jury rudder consisting of beach logs chained together. This was attached to Surf's bow. Then she was floated off the beach, a tow line was attached to her stern, and Leelo proceeded to tow her to Esquimalt.

In the Straits of Juan de Fuca the men, cold and tired, might have expected some respite. But the sea and strong southeast wind merely increased in force. With Esquimalt and a berth for the broken vessel almost in sight, these former fishermen waited patiently for three knots of speed to close the gap. It was reported now that Surf's port oil fuel tanks had given way.

Once more, Lieut. Reay reluctantly came to the conclusion that Surf would again have to be beached. With Surf up on shore they found her fuel oil tanks had leaked and that to get her to Esquimalt more oil drums were needed. Again Leelo put out into the dirty weather and headed for an oil company's jetty. Here 11 drums were obtained—back again to Surf.

By 2 o'clock in the morning the weather was moderating. All hands were called and Surf was refloated. Through darkness Leelo tugged the damaged, listing Surf to Esquimalt, arriving shortly after noon on the 18th day.

Surf's hull was scrapped, but her machinery, $12,000 of it, was saved intact and undamaged because these men of the Fishermen's Reserve refused to let wind or sea or limited equipment defeat them.

Solemn Ordination Conducted By Bishop

Rt. Rev. Harold E. Sexton, Bishop of British Columbia, conducted service of ordination at Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning when three candidates, William E. Askew, B.A., Herbert Oldfield, B.A., and Leonard D. Dixon were admitted to the diaconate.

Mr. Oldfield and Mr. Dixon are Victorians. Mr. Askew comes from Davidson, Sask.

The three ordinands, who now wear the clerical collar for the first time, have still to wait one year before they are ordained as priests.

Dean S. H. Elliott presented the candidates and read the Litany, Rev. F. Pike preached the ordination sermon and Archbishop Harding, retired Bishop of Rupert's Land, read the concluding prayers.

After the solemn ordination service, Mr. Askew read the gospel. He will preach next Sunday evening at Christ Church, being attached to the cathedral staff as assistant curate.

Now 22 years old, Mr. Askew first took his B.A. at University of Saskatchewan and finished at University of British Columbia, majoring last year in English and history.

At the annual convocation of the Anglican Theological College of British Columbia on Wednesday last, Mr. Askew was awarded the Sir Anthony Musgrave prize for general proficiency in third year; H. J. Cambie prize for student ranking highest in courtesy, scholarship and leadership; Seymour prize awarded by vote of students for the best contribution to the spirit of the college, and the Comely prize for student ranking first in practical theology in third year.

Mr. Dixon had conferred on him the Archbishop du Vernet prize for apologetics; the Comely prize for reversion, and the Percy Jex prize for student ranking second in third year.

Mr. Dixon, who is a former president of the cathedral branch of the A.Y.P.A., Sunday school superintendent and head of the cathedral servers, will work in the diocese of New Westminster.

Mr. Oldfield, son of H. C. Oldfield, Royal Oak, who took his B.A. at U.B.C., will go to the diocese of Brandon, Man.

Newstand Thieves Get $150 Cash, Goods

Douglas Bone's News Stand, Yates Street, was broken into early Sunday morning by thieves who took $150 in cash and merchandise. Police believe the unsuccessful attempt to enter the nearby Grand Spot News Stand was made by the same burglars.

Mr. Bone reported $75 to $80 in bills and $40 in nickels missing Sunday morning when he went to work. Cash totaling $5 was left in the till. Thieves also took a .22 calibre revolver and two boxes of shells, four cartons of cigarettes and two cartons of chewing gum.

Detective George Clayvards reported entrance to the news stand had been made through an open rear window and door leading to the store. Checks for fingerprints are being made.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a two-piece frock of turquoise blue crepe, with navy blue accessories and a corsage bouquet of gardenias and lily of the valley. Bridesmaid was Miss Ruth Kennedy wearing an afternoon frock of rosewood crepe, with blue accessories and a corsage bouquet of gardenias and forget-me-nots. Mrs. Gordon McGregor was the guest of honor when the R.C.A.F. wives entertained at a tea at the Hostess House, Sidney, recently. The rooms were gay with spring blossoms, and Mrs. Baker presided at the prettily-appointed tea table. About 60 guests were present.

Mrs. Harry Williams was hostess to members of the Chiselers' Bridge Club at her home on Anderson Avenue. Refreshments were served and prizes won by Mrs. Robert Livesay and the hostess. Other members present were Mesdames Kenneth Scott, Reuben Cartwright, Tom Newham, Robert Bullen, Robert Stewart. Guest of the evening was Mrs. Les Green. Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. R. Livesay, Foster Street.

Many guests attended a miscellaneous shower Friday evening for Miss Phyllis G. F. Heaslip, whose marriage took place Saturday evening to Pte. W. Bachlage, R.C.A.S.C. The shower took place at the home of Mrs. C. Rosemush, Wishart Road, Colwood. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Rosemush were her mother, Mrs. W. Wishart and Mrs. W. Henderson of Happy Valley. Streamers in patriotic colors decorated the living-room, also bowls of snapdragons. Corsages of carnations were presented to the bride-elect and her mother, Mrs. G. F. Heaslip. A gaily decorated miniature army ambulance contained the many gifts. Invited guests were Mesdames J. Trace, N. Hanson, E. Wishart, A. Murray, S. McNeill, J. Reed, S. Johnson, J. Crossfield, J. Miss Stella Wyatt and Miss Adele Murdoch, two brides-of-the-month, were honored by a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Muriel Mann at her home on Montreal Street. Corsage bouquets of mauve sweet peas and white carnations were presented to the guests of honor upon their arrival and as they sat in chairs decorated with big yellow bows they received pretty and useful gifts from a very large box covered with mauve and yellow crepe paper with flower petals sprinkled over it. Miss Irene Marshman was the winner of the games played during the evening. Mauve tulips and daffodils were arranged throughout the rooms, and a doll in yellow crinoline centred the buffet supper table. Other guests were Mesdames E. Allan, P. Edmond, M. McEvay, E. M. Wied, N. Dagat and Misses Doris Calow, E. Cromac, E. Hawthorn, D. Mearon, E. Proteau, V. Shoukide, E. Taylor, C. Thornett, B. Wilson and E. Foster.

Mrs. H. Townshend Heads Old Girls

Mrs. Harry Townshend (Dorothy Beaumont Boggs) was elected president of St. Margaret's Old Girls' Association at the annual reunion held Saturday at the school. Other officers chosen were: Vice-president Mrs. Alice Woods (nee Nash); secretary, Miss Elizabeth Angus; assistant secretary, Miss F. W. Price; entertainment committee, Miss Jennifer Hobbs, Miss Vervan Yarrow, Miss Sheila Williams.

Lieut. Barbara Bullock-Webster, retiring president, was in the chair. Heartily votes of thanks were accorded Miss H. M. Pearce, headmistress, and to Miss Frances Price for all her work in connection with the association in the past year.

At the luncheon, covers were laid for 70, including 45 old girls. Lieut. Bullock-Webster proposed the toast to "The King," and Mrs. Woods (Alice Nash) proposed the toast to Miss Margaret Barton, former headmistress, now in England. A cable was read from Miss Barton. Mrs. Griffith (Pauline Hays) proposed the toast to the matriculation class, and Miss Sheila Francis replied.

A game of basketball, Old Girls vs. Present Girls, brought the reunion to a close, the latter team winning.

Anglican Girls' Rally Success

The Anglican girls' rally was held in St. John's Church recently. After prayers, led by Iris Watson of St. Barnabas' branch, and scripture by Robin McRae of St. Luke's, the address of welcome was given by Miss Doris Lancaster.

Mrs. F. A. Goodwin, diocesan secretary, gave the report for the year. The president of each branch reported on the year's activities, including St. John's, Duncan, South Saanich, St. Luke's, St. Peter's, Quamichan; St. John's, Victoria, and St. Barnabas.

A sing-song was held before supper. Mrs. F. J. Brimer, diocesan president, asked the blessing. Bouquets were presented by Irene Noel to Mrs. F. G. Goodwin, diocesan secretary, and to Miss Doris Lancaster, diocesan Girls' Council president. An inspiring candlelight service was held in the church at 7 p.m., conducted by Rev. K. L. Sandercock. Assisting with this service were Doris Lancaster, Shirley Andrews, Shirley Bow and Pat Annersley. The collections taken at this service were voted to an Indian girl whom the G.A. is educating, and to Miss Hanna and Miss Thlingworth of the Sunday school by post.

Later Rev. M. Coleman spoke to the girls on London and the history of his church. South Saanich moved the vote of thanks to Mrs. F. A. Goodwin, Rev. K. L. Sandercock, Rev. M. Coleman, Rev. G. Biddle, and St. John's G.A., who acted as hostesses.

P.T.A. Would Change Requirements For Student Nurses

The B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation at its closing session in Vancouver passed a resolution urging that, in view of the present demand for nurses and the campaign just being launched to encourage girls to enter the profession, the present standard requiring university entrance be abolished and high school graduation be made the requirement. This resolution was brought up at the request of the Principals' Association.

The convention also endorsed the policy providing free motion pictures for the armed forces on Sunday was given at the final session Thursday afternoon of the Parent-Teacher Federation but it was urged "in the interests of the children of the nation" that in no instance should this policy be extended to include the civilian population.

Other resolutions passed urged: That the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation request the government of B.C. and the board of governors of the U.B.C. to establish courses at the university leading to a degree in physical education.

That rehabilitation plans be extended to cover all who might benefit, with special emphasis on the needs of children.

That representation be made to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation urging continued vigilance that occasional lapses into profanity may not occur.

That the B.C. government be requested to make provision for constant supervision of camps and hostels, on farms and in fruit growing areas, in order to look after the youth of the province.

Dr. J. M. Thomas of Saanich, speaking for the Rural Teachers' Association, asked the co-operation of the P.T. Federation in the matter of redistribution of taxation so that the country school teachers could receive a more adequate salary.

Warns Tremendous Casualties Coming

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt believes the U.S. should prepare for "tremendous casualties" after the war and that "when they come back, the war will become reality to us."

Speaking to members of the Graduate Club of Teachers' College here Sunday night Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"So few of us seem to realize the tremendous casualties we will have to absorb into our daily lives after the war. They will come back incapacitated and they must live, too. We must know how to make that possible."

WEEKLY WARTIME NUTRITION HINTS

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, whose weekly wartime cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints each Monday.

by Martha Logan

Stew Can be Glorified

Delicious and nutritionally tops, stew is economical in its use of cheaper meat cuts

It's such a pity that some people still don't appreciate stew! And such a mistake! At its best, stew is a dish for a king, besides which it has an important niche in the patriotic housewife's wartime menu, both because it uses the thriftier cuts, (not to mention leftovers), and because it offers a good way of meeting her family meat and vegetable requirements in one succulent dish. So, here we give four basic rules which will help you turn your stews into the family's favourite dinner.

FIRST—Brown the meat. Cut it into serving portions or cubes and brown in hot lard or beef dripping.

SECOND—Keep the heat low. Always simmer a stew. Never boil it.

THIRD—Don't overlook vegetables. Add the potatoes, the diced carrots and turnips, which are so good in stew, and the onions after the meat has simmered well. The vegetables will be nutritionally more valuable if the stew is served as soon as they are cooked. And don't hesitate to add celery, peas, string beans, mushrooms and other interesting vegetables that are on hand.

FOURTH—Experiment with flavourings. A bay leaf or a pinch of sage or thyme or a teaspoonful of Worcester sauce or ketchup . . . any of these can go a long way toward transforming plain stew into a culinary triumph.

And now, let's see where stew stands nutritionally. A good lamb, beef or veal stew made as above, with potatoes, diced carrots and turnips added, will take care of our minimum daily requirement of meat and part of our vegetable requirement. The other yellow or green leafy vegetable might be served at the same meal as a salad.

Then, with a slice or two of Canada Approved bread each, to soak up the gravy, and a glass of milk, you will have a meal that supplies so much of your family's basic needs that the balance (citrus or tomato juices—more bread—whole grain cereal—one other fruit) can safely be left to the other two meals.

Children of the Protestant

Orphanage and members of the staff compose this merry group photographed outside the Hillside institution a few days ago. On Thursday the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Orphanage will hold the annual line shower at 2631 Cook Street, and the public has been invited to participate. Tea will be served from 3 to 6 o'clock and there will be a musical program presented by the children. Guests will be welcomed by Mrs. Rita McTavish Hughes, president of the auxiliary and members of the auxiliary will conduct interested visitors through the home and grounds. Members of the committee emphasize the fact that the Orphanage is operated entirely by voluntary donations from the people of Victoria. For the convenience of those unable to attend the tea, baskets will be placed to receive gifts for the shower at David Spencer, the Hudson's Bay Company and the Irish Linen Store, or donations may be mailed to the Protestant Orphanage.

What then can be offered? There are many substitutes which will make nourishing and satisfying dishes and which will also be a change from the usual barrack fare. Take cheese and eggs for instance! Cheese with eggs, fish, macaroni or noodles, canned tomatoes and other vegetables, in casserole dishes or croquettes—a puffy soufflé or omelette—devilled eggs in a nest of spinach and covered with cheese sauce.

Or there is fish—fresh fish or smoked—made into fish cakes, or kedgeree made with rice and hard-boiled eggs mixed with white sauce. During the summer months fish and eggs can both be used in salads. A substantial soup or chowder will always help to fill a hungry tummy before the main course is offered. Dishes made with beans are also tempting and wholesome. Baked beans are always a favorite on this continent.

Then, of course, when meat is rationed we shall still have liver which can be cooked in so many appetizing ways.

Then we come to the difficulty of tea and coffee. Hot beef drinks such as oxtail, canned bouillon or consommé, hot spiced apple juice or one of the tea and coffee substitutes will fill the bill and coffee itself can be stretched by adding chicory.

In place of butter how about using cream cheese? Or, if you must use butter, stretch it by beating it up with 1/4 cup of cold milk to a pound of butter. Use grated cheese instead of butter on vegetables or use French dressing.

For desserts which take sugar try fillings of jam and jelly instead of icing on cakes (using less sugar also in the cake itself). Use ripe fruits and when cooking put sugar in ahead of time and give it a chance to dissolve. Jellies can be made with gelatine combined with flavoring and sweetened with jam or jelly.

There are endless ways to stretch rations and it can become quite a lot of fun to use our imagination to see what we can contrive.

The committee is preparing substitute recipes and hopes to have them ready shortly for anyone who cares to apply by phoning G 5425.

So Victoria hostesses, we hope

How to Entertain Men of Services

By DOROTHY SPURR

The Hospitality Committee in appealing for invitations for the Armed Services recently has so often met with remarks about "the difficulty of supplying meals due to rationing" that they wish to make a few suggestions to hostesses which they hope will be of help to them.

In the first place it is not necessary to supply a meat meal. The men get all the meat they need in camp.

What then can be offered? There are many substitutes which will make nourishing and satisfying dishes and which will also be a change from the usual barrack fare. Take cheese and eggs for instance! Cheese with eggs, fish, macaroni or noodles, canned tomatoes and other vegetables, in casserole dishes or croquettes—a puffy soufflé or omelette—devilled eggs in a nest of spinach and covered with cheese sauce.

Nurses' Week Is Proclaimed

Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Woodward has issued a proclamation declaring that the week of May 9 to 16, inclusive, is to be known as Nurses' Week throughout the province of British Columbia.

Arrangements for the week's activities are in the hands of the Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia, local chapters of that organization, alumnae of hospital training schools, clergymen, civic and school authorities and administrators of hospitals.

In many cities and towns throughout the province hospitals will be toured by schoolgirl groups who are considering nursing as a career.

Demonstrations of the activities of nurses are being planned in many centres. Registered nurses will be available to address women's organizations, service clubs and interested young women in school or church groups.

'Blind Date' Sale Netted Over $250

Over 1,000 parcels, including gifts sent from wellwishers from places as far away as Florida, New Mexico, Quebec, and Washington, D.C., found ready purchasers at the "Blind Date" sale.

Sponsored by the war work conveners of the I.O.E. primary chapters, the affair netted over $250 for the order's war work held on Saturday morning.

The sale opened at 9, and everything was sold out before 11, although would-be purchasers came expectantly until late in the afternoon.

Mrs. W. B. Horkins, national president I.O.E., Toronto, sent a handsome gift for the sale, and immediate past president, Mrs. W. G. Lumbers, Toronto, forwarded the sum of $5.

A tombola created much interest. Alderman D. D. McTavish drew the winning tickets, and the winners will be notified by telephone.

Today's War Analysis

By DE WITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Gen. Henri Giraud's prediction that "this month of May will see the complete defeat of the Boche in Tunisia" seems a reasonable speculation as things now stand.

The Allied forces have done a workmanlike job in driving wedges into vital sectors of the mountain are of Axis defences. Day-by-day the Allies have tightened the iron ring which they have thrown about the powerful fortifications among the craggy heights.

Latest reports indicate a slackening off in the fighting, but this doesn't indicate any weakening of our attack. It means the Allies have reached that point at which any force inevitably must arrive in a furious, all-out drive—a period of consolidation of gains and preparation for further assaults.

There is no longer any doubt as to the ultimate outcome of the battle of Tunisia. So far as the time of its achievement is concerned, it's essential that the job be cleared up as quickly as possible so as to permit operations in Europe.

Good fighting weather has arrived in many sectors, and by the first of June weather and ground will be prime for invasion. If by any chance that invasion should be across the English Channel, then it should be got under way in early summer in order really to put the screws on Hitler before the rains and mud of fall arrive to save him.

Gen. Giraud also predicted that "the 30-year war which began in 1914 will be ended victoriously in 1944." It could be, all right. Maybe he has a lot of inside information. However, it looks from here as though the duration of the Hitlerian war depends largely on when the Allies are able to invade western Europe from Britain. We must wait and see.

Sam Rubin Dies

Leaflets On the Loan

By Stephen Leacock, Canadian humorist.

Will It Bust the Country?

Got a rather bad jolt about the loan yesterday evening. I was afraid I should have to wire to Mr. Isley to have it called off. The reason was that I learned, on what seemed the best authority, that if we didn't call it off it would bust the country.

Yes,—that's what the old feller said, in my hearing, in the barber's chair right here in Mariposa—"bust the country." I was sitting there in the barber shop waiting my turn—or, well, I won't say "waiting my turn," but waiting till I had, in fairness, to accept my turn. You see, here in Mariposa it's not like in the city. The barber shop—I always go to Jeff's—is a comfortable place to sit in with as good conversation and as much information as you get in any first class club. So each one likes to sit as long as he can till Jeff nominates him to a chair. When he says, "You're next," you have to take your place. You've read about the guillotine.

Anyway, the other evening there was an old feller there getting his hair cut—or no I won't say "cut"—call it "distributed." He was pretty near bald, with a little straggling white hair and it's wonderful what a barber can do to spread it out and stand it, and make the most of it.

So he was talking. "It'll bust the country," he said, "you can't take a total of four or five billion dollars out of this country without busting it."

The old feller developed his argument and the "boys" sat and listened and the two barbers, at the two other chairs, quit shaving, and leaned over their customers' faces and whispered "get this."

"Five billion dollars among 10 million people is five hundred dollars each. And have they got it? Has the average man got five hundred dollars? How old do you think the average man in this country is?—and, mind you, for this you must count every man, woman and child—he's 15 years old! Has a boy of 15 got five hundred dollars? No, well, that means it'll break the country."

The barber let him out of the chair. I watched him closely, because you can't really tell what a man is like till he gets out from under the towels and dusters.

But the old feller looked all right—neat, well-dressed in a light grey suit—quite a dapper old feller and pink as a Peterborough ham.

He went out. Then the talk broke and I heard the verdict and I knew it was all right. "You don't know him?" They said. "Yes, you must. That's old Oliver Croke, the retired lawyer—Pshaw! He's had the country bust about twenty times already. He had it bust over the women's vote and the Trent Valley Canal, and the income tax and the Algoma Central Railway! Why, of course, old Oliver would say the loan will break us. What else would you expect?"

One of the Mariposa bank managers who was being shaved in one of the chairs, rolled over sideways in his soap-suds and said, "I'll tell you more, boys, though of course it's confidential and I wouldn't want it to go outside of this barber shop. The old feller's all right. He came into the bank today and took up ten thousand dollars of the loan."

So it's all right, Mr. Isley.

Ceiling Prices Set For New Potatoes

OTTAWA (CP)—The Prices Board Sunday night announced it was establishing retail ceiling prices on new potatoes, soon to appear on Canadian markets, and that the maximum at any point in Canada is 5½ cents a pound in May.

An order effective from today sets the scale of prices. In June, July and August the maximum price anywhere in Canada will be five cents.

These maximum prices apply to both imported and Canadian-grown new potatoes.

Kill Leading Nazi Flier

NEW YORK (AP)—A Nazi flier credited by the Germans with downing more than 100 planes, Capt. Wolfgang Tonne, has been killed in Tunisia, the Berlin radio said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press. Tonne wore the Knight's Cross of the Iron Cross with Oak Leaves awarded him by Hitler last Sept. 22 after "his 101st victory in the air," the broadcast said.

VICTORIA Army hockey players were glad to get back home but expressed disappointment over their failure to bring the Allan Cup with them. "We didn't win the cup but we at least had those Commandos mighty worried," said Lieut. Bud Ray, coach and manager of the Victoria club. "Most surprised of the teams we played were the Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers. They were the hot shots and figured to have the Canadian championship all tucked away. When we beat them it just cost Winnipeg hockey $16,000 as they would have staged all the finals had they won."

"I still think we should have beaten Ottawa," Ray declared. "It was a mighty tough break for us when Bill Carse was injured and we certainly didn't get any of the best of it from the referees. As a matter of fact I would say the poor refereeing had as much to do with our defeat as anything. However, I am glad it's all over and am certainly pleased with the showing the boys made."

Chatting to the Victoria players we got some interesting inside dope on the Commandos. It appears the team was backed by the Ottawa Arena and the players received nice fat pay cheques for their hockey efforts. It has been estimated the Allan Cup cost the Ottawa backers a cool $68,000. "They just went out and bought the Allan Cup," was the way one Victoria player put it.

General opinion among the Victoria team was that if all the games had been played at Calgary the Commandos would have gone back to Ottawa empty.

R.A.F. Whip V.M.D.

Potter's Goal Wins

Jeff Today

Deadlocking the score with a minute of play remaining and driving through for the deciding goal in overtime, R.A.F. defeated the Victoria Machinery Depot 4 to 3 Saturday in the local final of the Province Cup soccer competition. Victory moved the British flyers into the competition proper with the mainland clubs.

Bobby Potter, chunky inside right, was the star of the victory, scoring the winning goal five minutes after the teams opened the extra playing time. Nipping in, following a free kick against the V.M.D., he picked up the ball, after goalie Moon Evans had allowed it to slip through his hands on a header from the right wing, and lifted it into the unprotected net.

Defeat was a bitter pill for the league champion V.M.D. After winning the Jackson and Freddy Price cups the shipbuilders saw their chance for a B.C. championship go up in smoke. R.A.F. had a distinct margin in the first half and in overtime, with the V.M.D. in control in the second half. The grass pitch and light ball seemed to suit the R.A.F. better than their opponents. Gordie Bell, crack V.M.D. right-winger, was badly jarred in the opening minutes and definitely was not up to his usual from the rest of the afternoon.

TWO FOR HUGGINS

R.A.F. moved into the lead after five minutes when Huggins, bustling centre-forward, took a pass from Craig, outside right, flicked the ball past Dougan, V.M.D. centre half, and picked the corner of the net with a low shot. It was the prettiest scoring effort of the game.

Few minutes later the Flyers made it 2 to 1, centre-forward George Payne heading in a cross from Noel Morgan on the right flank.

The second half was only four minutes gone when V.M.D. tied the score. Awarded a free kick just outside the penalty area, the shipbuilders selected Payne to take the kick and the big fellow blasted a high shot past goalie Fairley. It was not a particularly hard drive and could have been saved if the goalie had been given better vision.

Keeping up the pressure the V.M.D. finally moved into the lead after 37 minutes. Alvin Parks slapping the ball into the net after a smart play on the right wing by Morgan.

With only 60 seconds remaining Craig took the ball on the right wing, scooted for the V.M.D. goal and let go with a hard cross drive which caught the far corner for the tying goal, and set the stage for Potter's score and an R.A.F. victory.

Dave McMillan refereed.

Kentucky Derby

Count Fleet Romps

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Fleet sailed into port with the 69th Kentucky Derby Saturday without even getting up a full head of steam under his star Canadian pilot, Johnny Longden. Just as was predicted almost unanimously for this war-time renewal of the turf classic, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Fleet—he has been tagged "The Fleet" or "The Count" ever since he skyrocketed to prominence a year ago—made a parade of this old run for the roses.

A comparatively slim crowd of 60,000—slim compared to the 90,000's of other years—roared him home. He took the lead when he wanted to in the mile and a quarter and there wasn't another galloper in the race with enough get-up-and-go in his hoofs even to challenge him.

The only hopeful who might have made him speed up from a waltz to a two-step was Warren Wright's Ocean Wave, and the Wave wasn't on the track. Three hours before the plaintive notes of "My Old Kentucky Home" drifted over this picturesque race-course, ocean wave was withdrawn because of an injured leg.

The Fleet broke out in full battle array after bouncing along with some of the others in the field of 10 for half a mile, and from there on it was just a gallop. At the wire, he was three lengths in front of Blue Swords, the pride of Allen T. Simmons, Akron, O., radio station owner, and nine in front of Slide Rule, from the barn of W. E. Boeing, Seattle airplane manufacturer. Well back in fourth place was Amber Light.

And all the way back they were stretching out just like that, all the way back to Burnt Cork, the entry of Eddie Anderson—Rochester of the radio—who was just as unanimously the pre-race prediction to finish last as the Count was to be first to the payoff line for the pile of banknotes, amounting to $60,725, which was waiting for the winner.

Count Fleet paid his backers $2.80 to win, $2.40 to place and $2.20 to show for a $2 ticket. Blue Swords paid $3.40 and $3. Slide Rule paid $3.20.

Townsend B. Martin's Bankrupt came along in a hurry the final few yards to wind up fifth, trailed in order by No Wrinkles, the hope of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars or Chicago—who owned Gallahadion—for her second Derby triumph; Dove Pie, surprise entry from the barn of J. Warfield Rodgers of Memphis, Tenn.; Gold Shower, Modest-Lad (carrying the colors of Mrs. Henry L. Finch, wife of a New York stockbroker), and finally, Burnt Cork.

Sunday Twin Bills Draw 165,189 Baseball Fans

The first full wave of major league baseball doubleheaders Sunday scheduled at eight parks attracted a total attendance of 165,189 fans with New York having 37,086 at the Polo Grounds to see the Giants battle Brooklyn Dodgers.

There also was a virtual capacity turnout of 32,000 at Washington's Griffith Stadium to see the much-improved Senators scrap with New York Yankees. The crowd in New York saw the Giants and Dodgers divide a doubleheader in which each game was decided by one run. Dodgers took the first 3 to 2 to hike their winning streak to six games. Relief pitcher Johnny Allen hit a double and a single to lead Brooklyn's offense. Giants bagged the nightcap 2 to 1 with Buster Maynard hitting a first-inning homer and bringing in New York's other run with a long fly in the second inning.

St. Louis Cardinals swept a doubleheader from Cincinnati Reds 7 to 6 and 6 to 3. Rookie Lou Klein drove in three runs to set the pace in the first game.

PIRATES WIN PAIR

Pittsburgh cleaned up on Chicago Cubs 3 to 0 and 1 to 0, as Wally Hebert pitched a three-hitter and Bob Klinger a four-hitter. Boston Braves and Phillies split. Boston won the first 3 to 1. Phillies took the second 6 to 5 in 12 innings. Schoolboy-Rowe appeared as a pinch-hitter for the Phils in the sixth and hit a grand slam homer to tie the score.

In the American League New York Yankees divided a doubleheader at Washington. They won the first 11 to 3 as Charley (King Kong) Keller smashed a three-run homer. Then Ewald Pyle stopped them in the second 4 to 1.

Weather cut Cleveland's double bill at Detroit to one game, but the Indians won it 5 to 2. St. Louis Browns swept two at Chicago 5 to 1 and 3 to 2 in 11 innings. Chef Laabs de-

Seattle Rainiers Win Doubleheader To Tie for Sixth

Seattle and Sacramento are deadlocked in sixth place today in the Coast League, after a week-end which saw the northern team put on the biggest spurt in the ball league, taking three of four games with the Solons.

The Rainiers took two Sunday, 2 to 1 and 1 to 0 to add to their split in the Saturday doubleheader. Both Sunday games were splendid exhibitions of pitching. Byron Speece of Seattle allowed seven hits in the opener, against Clem Drelswerd, who gave but five. In the seven-inning nightcap, little Pete Jonas, recruit from Vancouver of the Western International League, set the Californians down with only one blow. Seattle won the first Saturday game, 9 to 4, but dropped the second, 7 to 2.

Portland is in a tie for third place although beaten by San Diego, 5 to 2, in the series score. Portland won Sunday's first game, 8 to 3, but dropped the second, 5 to 4.

San Francisco, tied with the Beavers for third position, ended its series behind, 4 to 3, but split two week-end double bills with Oakland.

Los Angeles climaxed the week by catching a train and leaving the second game of the Sunday doubleheader with the Hollywood Stars deadlocked at 1 to 1 at the end of the fifth inning. The Angels won the first game, 7 to 6.

SOFTBALL GAME

Tonight at the Central Park, starting at 6.15, an exhibition softball game will be played between Douglas Tire and the Army senior A team.

Joan Bennett in Dizzy Comedy

Joan Bennett and Franchot Tone, co-stars of the ineffable "She Knew All the Answers," are now at the York Theatre in a comedy even dizzier and more delightful, Columbia's "The Wife Takes a Flyer." A whirl of love and laughter, with thrills and chills lending exciting background, "The Wife Takes a Flyer" is the fun-filled fable of an R.A.F. Yankee who bails out over occupied territory, to find the arms of its loveliest occupant more dangerous than the long arm of the Gestapo. Miss Bennett appears as a little Dutch girl estranged from her eccentric husband seeking a divorce. When Tone parachutes into her immediate vicinity, and turns to her for shelter, she pretends he is her husband, much to the mortification of a pompous Nazi major "on the make."

Tone promptly falls in love with the girl, and does his level best to win her the divorce she wants.

'Random Harvest' Now at Capitol

Author James Hilton is a gentleman of refreshing candor. Meeting Director Mervyn LeRoy, he, naturally, discussed Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of "Random Harvest," his latest novel, which comes today to the Capitol Theatre.

LeRoy gave Hilton quite a build-up about the ideal casting of Ronald Colman and Greer Garson for the starring roles, and also the excellent job of adapting the novel to the screen. The motion picture version is told straight away, whereas the Hilton novel was related in flashbacks.

"It's really a great script," said LeRoy. "Have you read it?"

"Yes," Hilton answered. "How did you like it?" asked LeRoy.

"Confidentially," replied Hilton, "the script is better than the book."

'Tennessee Johnson' Historical Drama

The period following the close of the war between the North and South has hitherto been neglected by movie producers, as material for screen plays.

Now M.G.M. has remedied this oversight in its new historical drama, "Tennessee Johnson." The result leads to the question as to why this page of history has been so long overlooked.

The picture, which is coming Tuesday to the Dominion Theatre, tells, in a sound, impressive and powerfully dramatic story based on the life of Andrew Johnson, illiterate runaway tailor's apprentice, who becomes President of the United States, following Lincoln's death, in one of the most turbulent political periods in history.

The stars are Van Heflin, Lionel Barrymore and Ruth Hussey, a trio of top-drawer screen artists charged with the responsibility of making three historical characters true-to-life human beings; Johnson as the struggling politician who became President; Miss Hussey as his faithful wife, and Barrymore as his political enemy, Thaddeus Stevens, who sought to have him impeached.

Human War Film From Brophy's Novel

One of the outstanding novels of the war, John Brophy's "Immortal Sergeant," has been made into one of the most human films to come out of the war.

According to preview critics, the film, which is due to open Friday at the Dominion Theatre, represents the finest performance to date of its stars, Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Hara.

Set in north Africa, the picture depicts the events which led to the rout of Rommel. It is the first picturization of desert warfare, and in its stark realism shows many of the hardships and trials the battlers of the United Nations are facing.

Cast in important supporting roles are Thomas Mitchell, Allyn Joslyn and Reginald Gardiner. Lamar Trotti wrote the script and produced the picture which was directed by John Stahl.

'Shadow of Doubt' Presented at Plaza

Santa Rosa, Calif., stopped the clock for Hollywood recently and befuddled several hundred of its citizens on the time.

It happened when Alfred Hitchcock, noted movie director, was filming special scenes for "Shadow of a Doubt" in the California city. The picture, now at the Plaza Theatre, co-stars Teresa Wright and Joseph Cotten. It is presented by Jack H. Skirball Productions and released by Universal Pictures.

In the heart of the city, atop the Bank of America, is a huge clock that looms on the skyline

Also, the giant timepiece towers above the main street through which an endless stream of tourist and local traffic flows. The clock has a certain significance in the mystery story and the hour had to be 8.57.

Workers scaled up the tower, stopped the intricate mechanism, set the hands, and all night long the hour remained unchanged.

Movie Reunites Star and Director

Irene Dunne will make her second appearance for Producer-Director Gregory La Cava when Universal's comedy-drama, "Unfinished Business," opens today at the Cadet Theatre.

Miss Dunne also starred in "Symphony of Six Million," directed by La Cava in 1932. Robert Montgomery co-stars with Miss Dunne in the new La Cava film, said to be one of the finest offerings by the successful producer-director.

TERESA WRIGHT, Hollywood's newest screen favorite, co-stars with Joseph Cotten in Alfred Hitchcock's "Shadow of a Doubt," now showing at the Plaza Theatre.

Walsh Appeal Fails, Boot Cases Closed

The Court of Appeal, following a hearing which lasted less than half an hour, today dismissed the appeals of Joseph Arthur Walsh, managing director of Wm. Cathcart Co. Ltd. and L. J. Simmons, former provincial police quartermaster, winding up the three cases which arose from charges of conspiring to defraud the provincial government in police stores deals.

Stuart Henderson, counsel for the appellants, set forth without argument the points raised in previous cases when the Walsh appeal was called. One covered his objection to signing of the indictment by the acting Attorney General, a second covered admissibility of certain documents, and a third involved use of police identification cards, which counsel claimed merely threw discredit on the accused.

As a further point Mr. Henderson argued the trial judge limited, through his charge to the jury, complicity to the two men only in the alleged conspiracy. By his charge the possibility of a person or persons unknown participating was ruled out, Mr. Henderson said. In spite of that the jury found the pair guilty as charged. The charge included the possibility of conspiracy with persons unknown.

W. C. Moresby, K.C., contended the judge later cleared up that point. He cited evidence to prove his claim.

"I would dismiss the appeal," said the Chief Justice, D. A. McDonald. Mr. Justice Sloan and Mr. Justice Fisher agreed.

Before adjourning the court transferred the Turner appeal to Vancouver owing to the fact appeal books are not ready for the present sitting.

Mrs. Clara Cuthbert, 1040 Empress Avenue, received first aid at the city police station and was taken home Saturday after she was knocked from her bicycle at Yates and Blanshard by an army truck operated by S. J. C. Allen, Woolen Mills.

Saying he had jumped a freight train at Nanaimo when he had had trouble with his family, a 14-year-old Indian boy was brought to the city police station from Craigflower Saturday by J. Gardiner, 17 Jelfburgh Road.

Considerable damage resulted to two cars Saturday when D. McKenzie, backing from the curb on Fort Street and a No. 9 street car collided. McKenzie said the force of the impact caused his car to crash into a parked car.

Magistrate H. C. Hall today reduced for a Yarrow's workman, who said he was delayed by the Johnson Street Bridge being up, the fine for exceeding the 30-mile speed limit. The workman paid $10 instead of the customary $15. One other motorist was fined $2.50 for parking more than 12 inches from the curb.

Police Sunday night searched the Hillside district around Graham Street without results after a 23-year-old woman reported she had been chased by a man at Kings Road and Wark Street. B.C. Electric Sued For $8,000 Damages

The action of Hartwick Oliver Rud for damages exceeding $8,000 against the B.C. Electric Railway Co. Ltd. for injuries he sustained Dec. 28 last when allegedly struck by the streetcar proceeding towards town a short distance from the Esquimalt terminus, opened before Mr. Justice Sidney Smith in Supreme Court today.

Plaintiff states he had gone to Esquimalt to pick up a stalled car. He had been towing that automobile a short distance when the engine started and both the towcar and the other vehicle had been brought to a stop parallel to the streetcar lines. While disengaging the tow chain and putting it in the towcar he alleges he was struck by the streetcar.

Dr. A. J. Sinclair today testified he had treated the plaintiff in hospital for a fractured skull above the right temple.

Frank Morris, another witness for the plaintiff, described his view of the accident on the day in question.

P. J. Sinnott appears for the plaintiff and Roy Manzer and Ralph Mathews for the B.C. Electric.

Shipyards Maintain Victory Loan Spirit

Eighty per cent of the shipyard workers of Yarrow's Plant No. 2 have already subscribed to the Victory Loan. Besides having girl-workers selling bonds, impetus is being given by the showing of war films during noon-hour rest periods. Saturday plant No. 2 saw the Russian picture "One Day at War" and today workers of plant No. 1 gathered at a showing of "Pioneers of Japan."

E. Heybroek, from the payroll section of the National War Finance Committee, said close cooperation is being received, and commended the effort being put forward by employees of both shipyards. Yarrow's reports show $175,000 invested in bonds to date, against a quota of $225,000.

The Victoria Machinery Depot employees were busy with the construction of three floats for the Victory Loan parade last week and have barely started their drive as yet. Judging from the success of their efforts in previous Victory Loan drives, they, too, will reach their quota before the three weeks campaign is ended, War Finance officials believe.

Sunday V.M.D. employees, with an escort of provincial police headed by Inspector Owens, delivered to the Queen Alexandra Solarium the miniature war-worker's house and the Victory ship which was built by shipyard workers for the crippled children. The gifts were mounted on two decorated floats and entered in the Victory Loan parade Saturday, when the official presentation was made at the reviewing stand. Joiners and other workers from V.M.D. erected the model house in the Solarium grounds close to the swimming pool.

Victoria Firms Back Loan's Payroll Plan

Many Victoria firms are taking advantage of the convenient payroll savings plan whereby employees can buy Victory Bonds on a monthly deductible basis.

According to officials of the payroll branch of the National War Finance Committee, at least two firms have reached their quota, British American Paint Co. and Hickman-Tye Hardware Co.

Among business houses reaching 75 per cent of their objective in the first week of the campaign are included: Kresge's Ltd., Lemon-Gonnon Ltd., Lumber Co., Northwestern Creamery, Andrew Sheret Ltd., Veteran Sightseeing, W. and J. Wilson's and Yarrow's Limited.

The following have attained 50 per cent of their Victory Loan quota: Canadian Industries Ltd., MacDonald's Consolidated, New Method Laundry and Royal Trust Company.

The payroll department is endeavoring to sign up 9 out of 10 workers on the payroll savings plan. Most companies with 25 or more employees have machinery for handling payroll deductions and distributing bonds and war savings certificates. The work is done without remuneration, and every dollar subscribed by an employee through his company goes directly for prosecution of the war.

The government is asking that Canadian wage-earners invest 12 1/2 per cent of their gross payroll in Victory Bonds. While some may save 20, 40 or even 50 per cent of their salaries, others with heavy obligations may not be able to save the average amount. It is for this reason, National War Finance officials say, that Canada does not raise all the money she requires through taxes and compulsory savings.

A Victory Bonds bought for $100 will guarantee the buyer $143 by 1956; that is, it will be redeemable for $101, and the citizen will have received $42 in interest during that time. The payroll system makes it easier for the average worker to invest his money on a profitable basis by monthly installments, and at the same time, back Canada's war effort.

4 Automobiles Stolen

Of the three cars and one truck reported stolen over the week-end city police recovered one 20 minutes after the theft was announced.

The recovered car, owned by William B. Wilson, 1905 Blanshard Street, was taken from Blanshard near View, and found on Fort.

C. A. May's car, taken from Fort and Douglas, C. Smith's auto taken from the Dugout, and a two-yard gravel truck, reported by Saanich police as stolen from Sidney, have not been recovered.

The Court of Appeal today transferred to its Vancouver sitting the appeal of John Milton found guilty and sentenced at the last sittings here for possession of money stolen from the Safeway Stores Ltd.

City Employee Passes After 35 Years' Service

William Henry Cox, 187 Joseph Street, who died Sunday at Jubilee Hospital, had lived in Victoria nearly 70 years, and had been employed by the City of Victoria for 35 years. He was born at Sapperton and was educated at Central School. He was a member of Court Northern Light A.O.F. He leaves his wife, Mrs. W. H. Cox, five sons, W. H. Cox Jr., A. J. Cox, R. F. Cox, C. H. Cox, Victoria, and J. E. Cox, Portland, and two daughters, Mrs. A. Worth, Victoria, and Mrs. L. Huber, California. One son, Arthur J. Cox, was killed overseas in 1916.

Funeral will be held from B.C. Funeral Parlors Wednesday afternoon at 2; burial Ross Bay.

Youth Loses Thumb When Cap Explodes

Eleven-year-old Norman Fenton, son of Edwin Fenton, Keating Cross Road, Saanich, today is recovering from serious hand wounds suffered last week when he applied a match to a blasting cap which he found in the basement of his home.

The exploding detonator blew away his left thumb and mangled two fingers of his left hand. Both may have to be amputated.

Dr. M. D. McKichan, Saanich, attended the youth.

As a result of the accident authorities are emphasizing the need to educate children of the danger of blasting explosives and of the responsibility of adults to keep them in safe places.

Laval Prevented French Cabinet Switch to Africa

NEW YORK (AP) — Camille Chautemps, French Vice Premier at the time of the German Armistice, said in a letter to the New York Times, published today, that Marshal Petain arranged for him to transfer the French government to north Africa in June, 1940, and that violent intervention by Pierre Laval, now Chief of Government, prevented fruition of the plan.

Admiral Jean Darlan "worked loyally" for the plan, though he had no part in the decision, Chautemps wrote.

Chautemps, who now lives in Chevy Chase, Md., said that on June 19, 1940, two days after Petain became premier, President Albert Lebrun informed the marshal that the Germans were advancing on the provisional capital of Bordeaux "and that his government would lose all liberty of discussion of the terms of the armistice" which Petain had requested.

That evening, Chautemps was summoned for a long conversation with Petain.

"He reported to me the remarks of the Chief of State, which I supported as strongly as I could," Chautemps wrote, "we decided that he would delegate me to go to north Africa to direct the government abroad, while he himself would remain in France to protect the people against the abuses of the victor."

"The next morning, supported by the President of the Republic and by me, he had our decision confirmed by the council of ministers despite a strong opposition led by Gen. (Maxime) Weygand (French commander-in-chief), as well as by Messrs. (Foreign Minister Paul) Baudouin and (Finance Minister Yves) Bouthillier."

Lebrun was to leave that afternoon with Jules Jeanneney and Edouard Herriot, presidents of the legislative assemblies. The ministers were to follow in the evening.

"Admiral Darlan took charge of having in the harbor of Port-Vendres the destroyer on which the president and the ministers accompanying me were to make the trip," Chautemps said.

"It was he also who put at the disposal of the members of Parliament the ship Massilia, which was to convey them to Casablanca. Moreover, he gave a naval division which was cruising in the Mediterranean the order to guard the presidential trip."

The plan could not be executed, Chautemps said, "because Laval, who was not yet in the government, intervened violently against President Lebrun and Marshal Petain, and because they surrendered to him."

Return to Work

LONDON (CP) — Some 1,800 men returned to work today after a five-day strike at two Warwickshire mines which authorities said cost the country's small fuel stocks 17,000 tons of coal.

The strike involved local issues and there has been no threat of a general stoppage.

Wages generally have kept pace with the rise in the cost of living index, which has advanced roughly 30 per cent since the war started. Both miners and owners agreed to submit their disputes to mandatory settlement by national and district tribunals.

Victoria Cafes Plan Appetizing Menus For Meatless Day

Canada's first meatless days go into effect tomorrow, but judging from a survey of restaurants and cafes today managers of Victoria eating houses are not greatly worried by it.

Chefs seemed confident that they can cope with meatless menus, and, judging by the answers they have got to the question "What's cooking?" Victoria noonday diners will not have anything to complain of.

"I've given it some thought and discovered there are lots of things we can serve," said one chef, who has been in the business for 22 years.

The fact that poultry and fish can be served in place of meat, he said, provided a loophole with plenty of leeway.

"Look under poultry," he said, "we can serve turkey, or any other kind of fowl, and all their by-products. Chicken cutlets will probably take the place of pork or veal, which we have not been able to get very recently lately anyway. Then there's turkey croquettes, for variety, or creamed or curried chicken."

Then there's fish of all kinds, which can be served in thousands of different ways—crab salads, oysters, cutlets, fresh and smoked fish in many different ways.

VEGETABLE PLATES

Vegetable plates, with poached eggs, creamed eggs, or eggs curried with rice, scrambled, in omelettes, or plain boiled, or fried, promised additional options with plenty of variety.

Salads, too, were expected to have a new place in popularity, with the favorite egg and tomato leading the list, though cottage cheese with orange has been creeping into favor with a small, but steady, minority, recently.

Snack bars and lunch counters which specialize in quickly-cooked dishes will probably concentrate on chicken cutlets and fried fillets of fish, such as halibut, it was reported by one such eating place.

"We've only been having one hot meat dish each day," said the manager of this place, "and we will probably just substitute a fish dish for it, the way we do on Friday."

The regular Friday fish tradition will also be continued, this proprietress said.

With chefs planning attractive substitutes, and interesting accompaniments to what is available, such as corn fritters to serve with egg dishes, it looks as if downtown diners will not have any difficulty selecting a satisfying meal tomorrow, in spite of meatless menus.

Judging by the meager amounts of meat displayed in the markets today, it seemed that the meatless rule will also go into effect voluntarily in many households as well.

A.R.P. Activities

District 7—Saanich wardens and first aid personnel are requested to attend a general meeting at Hampton Hall Thursday night at 8. The public is invited. Army lecturers will talk on gas warfare. Moving pictures will be shown.

An invitation to attend the May Queen celebration Wednesday, May 12, at 2.30, was received by the City Council today from the Esquimalt Community Club.

A 27-passenger Vancouver Island Coach Lines' bus was ruined by fire as it was parked in Sidney at 4.45 a.m. today. Origin of the fire is a mystery. The Sidney Volunteer Fire Department attended the fire.

They'll Do It Every Time

THE DAY THAT POOR TREMBLECHIN WAS LATE FOR WORK AND LEFT HIS BRIDGE—WORK ON THE BATH-ROOM BASIN

~WAS THE ONE DAY THE BOSS HAD SO MUCH AS NOTICED HIM IN SIX MONTHS.

TREMBLECHIN—THIS IS MR. STUFFLE-SHIRT, CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD. I WANT YOU TO COME TO LUNCH WITH US AND EXPLAIN HOW THE NEW PRIORITY RULINGS AFFECT YOUR DEPARTMENT.

Merriman Talks

With all due respect to those who are doing a lot to provide entertainment in Victoria for service men of the Allied nations who visit the city, we seem to be a little too reticent or shy. It makes us seem inhospitable.

The comment is prompted by the enthusiasm with which Canadians and R.A.F. men tell of receptions they have been given on visits across the line. As American sailors and soldiers in increasing numbers are dropping into Victoria on week-end leaves, there should be some reciprocity or Victoria will get the reputation of being cold and inhospitable.

We may present the excuse that it is the well-known Victoria reserve which prevents us from making the first advance to greet a stranger no matter how friendly Victoria may feel towards them.

However, the strangers may not know that and think we are indifferent and unsocial.

The contrast across the line is striking. A Victoria soldier the other day was telling about his brother stationed in Montreal. For Christmas leave he went to New York with no definite plans. With another Canadian soldier he had breakfast in a restaurant.

"Your bill has been paid," they were informed when they went to pay it.

At lunch in another restaurant some U.S. marines stepped up to their table.

"Hello, Canadians. We'll join you," they said. They were guests of the marines.

In the evening they were looking at the posters in front of a show.

"Are you going to the show?" a civilian and his wife asked. They went as guests.

At the show they were introduced to other friends of the civilian and his wife. They were booked as Christmas guests, where they found half a dozen other Canadians who were also guests at the Christmas party.

Another soldier told of similar hospitality in Detroit.

Nearer home, others tell of the cordial manner Seattle entertains Canadians in uniform in that city, U.S. service men and civilians both acting as hosts.

"I left for one day with $5 to spend on one day of my fur-lough in Seattle," said one R.C.A.F. man. "I met some Americans on the boat. They introduced me to other friends. I was entertained, taken for motor rides in spite of the gas ration. I spent three full days there and could have spent more and when I returned I still had the $5 I started with and had no chance to spend any of it."

The R.A.F. men who went over to give their "Smiles" show were lionized to an extent beyond their imagination. Besides seeing their public performances featured in the bright lights and received with enthusiasm by packed theatres they were thrilled by the reception it received when it was presented to convalescent U.S. sailors and marines, many of whom had seen action in the Solomon Islands.

Writing of the visit in the R.A.F. magazine the editor says: "After what had seemed a non-stop session of shows and functions, the final curtain was rung down on Tuesday night, all too soon we felt, and our most lasting impression was that the Americans were as pleased to see us as we were to meet them. The hospitality extended to us was generous to a degree and, apart from swelling the funds of the war charities, we feel sure that the many new friendships made as a result of our visit will be additional links in the bond of friendship between the two great English-speaking nations."

When we see U.S. soldiers and sailors in Victoria it might be as well to bear these facts in mind and show a little reciprocity.

SAILOR'S PSALM

Chief P.O. Jim who frequently tells me with salty emphasis that anyone reading this column would think soldiers were the only men who counted in the service, blew his top over a cartoon the other day.

It showed a picture of a couple of soldiers and a sailor. The soldier handed the sailor a cigarette. "I always like to be chums with the sailors," he told his soldier friend. "After all they are our allies, just the same as the Russians."

Knowing nothing about the navy, I often wondered what a chief petty officer's duties are. Evidently he is equivalent of a sergeant-major in the army. The Sailor's Psalm in the Crow's Nest, Halifax navy paper, expresses it well. Here it is:

The Chief is my shepherd, I shall not want another, He maketh me scrub the deck beneath him And destroyeth my hope. He leadeth me in the path of ridicule Of my shipmates. Yea, though I wax and polish all day long, I fear much evil: For he is with me, And his critical stare discomforteth me. He prepareth the rattler for me In the presence of my friends, He anointeth my knees with blisters And I nearly falleth over. Surely if this thing followeth me all the days of my life, I shall dwell in the bughouse forever.

U.S. Coal Moves Freely in Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—All regulations imposed on distribution in Canada of United States coal as a result of the coal strike in American fields were removed at least temporarily today by Coal Controller J. McG. Stewart.

The munitions department announced the suspension of an order put into effect April 30 freezing all bituminous coal in transit from the U.S. and regulating deliveries from stockpiles to the larger consumers in Ontario and Quebec.

"According to the coal controller, the order would again become effective should strikes or any other causes threaten Canadian supplies of coal," said the department in a statement.

Sunday night, shortly after John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' president, had announced in New York that a two-week agreement had been made with the government ending the work stoppage in United States hard and soft coal fields, an order freezing all anthracite coal in transit from the U.S. or in Canadian stockpiles was revoked.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE "TORTURE" QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Modern Pharmacy and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Forces On Pacific Coast Adequate, Says Air Chief

OTTAWA (CP)—Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of the air staff, and Air Vice-Marshal N. K. Anderson, who, as air member for air staff, is responsible for the Dominion's air defences, returned at the week-end from a two-weeks' tour of the Pacific coast, which included a visit to R.C.A.F. units serving with the United States army air forces in Alaska.

"There is no one who can say that any force is competent to meet any threat," said Air Marshal Breadner when questioned about the Japs. "But it can be said that our forces on the Pacific coast are adequate to meet the presently apprehended scales of enemy operations."

The chief of the air staff went as far as Kodiak, Alaska, but weather conditions prevented scheduled visits farther along the Aleutian chain. Visits were made to R.C.A.F. units commanded by Wing Cmdr. Robert Morrow, D.F.C., of Toronto, and Wing Cmdr. G. G. Diamond of Gladstone, Man.

Air Marshal Breadner declared: "Despite the fact that some of the personnel, because of the difficulties of travel, have not had leave for almost a year, they are happy, fit, efficient and ready to take on anything that may come their way."

"Our units, operating under the commanding general of the U.S. army air forces in that area, are competently carrying out any tasks assigned to them, and they are very highly regarded by the U.S. command."

Throughout the entire Pacific coast area, Air Marshal Breadner said there had been considerable improvement in defences. New equipment was moving in steadily, and there was a high

"dirty work" at the derailment scene.

The engine and five coaches of the 14-coach special overturned.

Conductor E. H. Moulton, 54, of Winnipeg, suffered fractures of ribs and shock. He was brought to a hospital here, where his condition today was reported "fairly good."

Engineer W. J. Yarde and fireman Joseph Ceilen, both of Winnipeg, also received hospital treatment, but were not detained.

The Tribune added that Supt. H. Tucker of the R.C.M.P. in Winnipeg had been informed by C.P.R. officials the possibility of number of fully-trained crews ready for the newer and larger aircraft continually coming to them.

In Vancouver, he and Air Vice-Marshal Anderson visited the new combined headquarters of the three services, where, in a common operations room, the whole situation on the Pacific coast is under survey from hour to hour. There the Pacific commanders of the three services meet regularly over the operations table, and the closest co-operation is maintained.

The chief of the air staff also concerned himself especially with the question of supply and equipment to R.C.A.F. units, and spent some time checking the situation with respect to a new equipment depot. In this regard, he reported, he had found things in "a very satisfactory state."

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

Every Earner Can Be Property Owner

With practically every employable Canadian at work, authorities are pointing out that wage earners can establish themselves as tomorrow's "people of property." Anyone who can save as little as $10 per month can buy a Victory Bond on the installment plan from his bank—and Victory Bonds represent the safest and most valuable property in existence. A Victory Bond is as "marketable" as cash. If you hold a bond, you can go to any bank and sell it, or borrow money on it at any time, without delay. Thus you are protected against emergencies, while being paid interest on your investment, every six months, by the Government. Think too what these savings will mean to you after the war—in buying the many things which you now deny yourself. So put every dollar you can scrape together into Victory Bonds—and back the attack of our fighting forces.

Air Raid Warnings

Victorians today were reminded by Inspector A. H. Bishop, Victoria A.R.P. controller, of air raid siren signals, which must be obeyed immediately.

A precautionary blackout is announced by a continuous steady note of five minutes' duration on the siren warning system. This warning orders that all buildings must be completely blacked out and all outside lights must be extinguished. Flashlights, if used, must be dimmed and pointed downwards.

The sounding of a wailing or fluctuating note for five minutes on the air raid warning system indicates an imminent danger blackout has been ordered. All building and outside lights must be blacked out or extinguished. No lights of any kind may be visible.

Rattles will announce the presence of poison gas. The sounding of a precautionary blackout warning signal following an imminent danger blackout indicates the end of the imminent danger period although the precautionary blackout remains.

The all clear will be announced by radio and the press. During a blackout of either kind it is illegal to use whistles for warnings.

Meat Inspection Plan Under Study

Feasibility of having farmers in districts surrounding Victoria bring all meat they produce for sale in the city to some central local point for inspection and stamping prior to distribution to retail outlets was under study by the city health committee today. Inspection matters came to the fore during recent weeks when federal regulations governing slaughtering centred interest on the local meat situation. At present beef not stamped by government inspector on the mainland prior to shipment here must be inspected and stamped by the city sanitary inspector. Although no complaints have been raised over the arrangement, possibility of meat being sent to retailers without inspection was seen here. The same condition, sanitary department officials said, could exist anywhere.

To facilitate inspection, the proposal was advanced that some central location, probably a cold storage plant, might be used for that purpose with the city official making his call at set times.

Brazil, Cuba and Guatemala now supply 10 per cent of the chromium used in the United States in making steel alloys and cutting tools.

Fire in Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—A two-alarm fire of unknown origin Sunday partially gutted a two-story brick building housing the Capitol Cleaners in this city's southern Bennett district and did extensive damage to machinery and clothing.

No one was in the building when the blaze broke out. A nearby resident, Bill Bruno, noticed smoke pouring from the establishment and turned in an alarm.

Fanned by a high wind, the flames shot up through the second floor and broke out on the roof. Huge Sunday crowds were attracted to the fire and vehicular traffic had to be rerouted. Electric buses stood stalled while firemen battled the flames with six lines of hose laid across 90th street.

Company officials said the plant was insured. Fire authorities today were investigating in an attempt to learn the cause of the blaze.

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP)—"Big Willie" Camper, negro, eight feet seven inches tall and weighing 450 pounds, collapsed and died at the week-end in a side-show where he was billed as "the largest boy in the world." He was 18.

Dr. Henry Rampold said death was caused by a heart condition.

How soon we come back DEPENDS ON YOU

► Sure! We know what the coming battles are going to mean to us. But we've thought it all out, and we're ready for whatever lies ahead!

We're prepared to give all we've got so that our children, our wives and sweethearts... all our loved ones... will never have to live in slavery. You see, we are determined to protect young Johnny's future, mother's choice of a church, father's personal views, grandma's and grandpa's peaceful old age—all those things, big and small, that make life worth living.

We know that Victory won't be cheap... for this time there can be no Armistice, it must be unconditional surrender—theirs! And that will take more than everything we can give. Our best won't be enough unless you at home back us up right now by putting all you've got into Victory Bonds.

Remember... the longer you delay in buying all the Victory Bonds you possibly can, the longer will Victory be delayed... and the longer it will be before we can be back with those we love.
